Senate Acts On Pay Raise Bill; April May See It At White House

SENATE action on the $668 million House-passed military pay bill is set for mid-April, indicating that the new rates could go into effect by 1 May or 1 June. The Administration had proposed a 1 July date.

Following overwhelming House approval of the new pay plan, Senator John C. Stennis (D-Miss.) told THE JOURNAL there is a possibility that the revised pay system will become effective before the end of the fiscal year.

He announced that his subcommittee is hopeful it can complete work on the measure by about 14 April, "get it to the full Committee and to the Senate floor."

Should the measure win final Congressional approval during April, the only obstacle standing in the way of an accelerated effective date would be the President's failure to sign the measure promptly.

As passed by the House, the new scales, reported in detail last week, take effect on the first day of the month following the month in which enacted.

The date of enactment is the date on which the President signs the measure into law.

There are indications that the White House is not entirely pleased with the higher cost of the House bill. Consequently there could be some reluctance on the part of the President to have the plan into effect before the start of the new fiscal year.

The enormous House vote in favor of the measure (366 for, 22 against) may act to tone down Administration complaints about the increased cost.

Although such complaints had not been publicly aired as THE JOURNAL went to press, there were strong hints by Senator Stennis and other members of his subcommittee that the Administration is not ready to back the higher cost of the House bill (about $154 million more than the Pentagon proposal).

Assistant Secretary of Defense William H. Francis, Jr., skirted the issue with a statement that the Defense Department has "not had time to evaluate the impact of the additional cost." He said the Pentagon is "concerned" about the added cost, however, and "will have to go over

THE PAY STORY

Every military man will want to study the pay table on the back page, which shows percentage increases in the House-passed bill. Last week's issue contained detailed pay tables for each officer, warrant officer and enlisted rank. Here are some other pay highlights in this issue:

all our various needs to see if we can absorb the increase."

He made the statement to the Stennis Subcommittee on 26 March at hastily-called hearings following House passage of the bill the day before.

General Nathan F. Twining, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, who also was called to testify, said he believes the Services "can absorb the added cost," if it becomes necessary to do so.

He said he and the other members of the Joint Chiefs all favor the House bill. "It impresses me," he added.

Secretary Francis told the Stennis Subcommittee that the House bill retains in large measure the four most important Cordner recommendations. He said these include two new officer and two new en-

Tax Expert Questions Army-AF Ruling; IRS Will Make Own "Sick Pay" Decision

Internal Revenue Service authorities may disagree with widely circulated interpretations of military "retirement age" developed by Army and Air Force officials.

Questioned by THE JOURNAL, an Internal Revenue Service expert on the subject said that Pentagon interpretations of "retirement age", used in determining "sick pay" tax exemptions for disability retired military personnel, "do not fit in" with the IRS line of reasoning. (THE JOURNAL, 1, 8 and 15 March).

Big Tax Exemption at Stake

At stake in the "retirement age" confusion is a tax exemption of up to $100 per week for many disability retired military personnel and tax refunds for some as far back as 1954.

"Retirement age," the IRS told the Navy, in response to an inquiry, is the "lowest age specified in the appropriate written ... plan at which the employee, had he not been disabled and had he con-

7-YEAR OBLIGATED SERVICE TOURS

Congressional action to extend obligated tours of Service Academy graduates can be expected within the next few months.

Demands for such a step are growing in both the Senate and House.

During House debate on the military pay bill, Representative H. R. Gross (R-Iowa) raised the question of amending the pay measure to require seven years' obligated service from graduates of West Point, Annapolis and the USAF Academy. He also has introduced legislation to require 10 years' obligated service.

Representative Paul J. Kilday (D-Tex) said he did not believe such action would be germane to the pay bill, but he informed Congressman Gross that the Armed Services Committee plans to hold hearings on the matter.

He said he agrees that graduates of the Academies "should be required to serve a proper length of time, and perhaps three or four years are not adequate." But Mr. Kilday said he is uncertain what the proper number of years should be. He said if an officer cannot be convinced in four years time that he should make a career of the military service, "perhaps it would be better to let him go."

GENERAL O. P. WEYLAND, USAF, Commander, Tactical Air Command (left) and General W. G. Wyman, USA, Commanding General, Continental Army Command, discuss the performance of the Air Force's newest aircraft in the ultrasonic class, the Lockheed F-104 "Starfighter." TAC is slated to receive the F-104 in the near future.

Sec'y Brucker On Manpower Needs

A statement in support of an Active Army of 925,000 and a Reserve Force of 700,000, including 400,000 in the National Guard, has been made by Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker in closed-door Congressional testimony.

Navy Wants "Planeless" Carrier

Congress has been asked to authorize construction of a Navy amphibious warship which looks like an aircraft carrier but won't carry airplanes. The vessel would be designed to handle 20 large Marine Corps helicopters and 2000 troops and their equipment. The Navy wants a total of 41 new amphibious vessels and landing craft.

"Two Hour" 80-Ship Reserve Force

The Navy is forming a Ready Reserve ASW Force whose officers and men will be able to spring into action within two hours after a surprise attack. Plans call for assignment of 80 destroyers and destroyer escorts to the Force by 1962.

Change "Saves" Survivor Benefit Rates; Increases Range To $90 Per Month

THE only amendment added to the military pay bill during House debate is a "saved pay" provision for survivor benefits.

The amendment prevents anyone who is drawing survivor benefits on the day before the effective date of the new pay bill from receiving any smaller amount than the payment in effect on that date.

Most survivors will receive increased checks if the House version of the pay bill becomes law. In some cases, however, there might have been a slight reduction without a savings clause in the bill. This was pointed out in THE JOURNAL (15 Mar.).

Under the House-passed bill, widows of general officers will receive increases ranging from $18 to $90 per month (THE JOURNAL, 22 Mar.).

Those now receiving survivor benefits can determine how much their new checks would be under the House-passed bill by taking the new pay rate for their husband's active-duty grade, multiplying it by 12 per cent and adding $112.

For example, under the House-passed bill a colonel with 26 years' service will receive $995 per month in base pay. Twelve per cent of this amount is $119.40. Since the next highest dollar figure is used in computing survivor benefits, this becomes $120. Add $112 to this amount, and the total monthly survivor payment is $232. At present, the survivor of a colonel with 26 years' service receives $206 per month.

Longevity Pay Vs Step-In-Grade; House Group Tells Objections

The modified longevity system substituted by the Kilday Bill for the Cordiner step-in-grade system offers a blending of both systems.

Under the Cordiner plan, the maximum number of pay raises possible for an officer to receive was two for second lieutenants, four for first lieutenants; six for captains, three for majors and lieutenant colonels, two for colonels and none for flag and general officers.

Under the Kilday Bill, if an officer starts at the bottom of the promotion ladder and works his way up through the various ranks, following the normal promotion pattern, the maximum number of pay raises he can receive in any single grade is four. In most instances, however, he will receive only two pay raises in any one grade.

Up To Six Raises Possible

In extreme examples (an officer who makes major after only six years' total service) it is possible under the Kilday plan to receive up to six pay raises, but such an example assumes that the outstanding officer who was promoted rapidly to major then fails to win promotion to lieutenant colonel over the next 12 years.

The House Armed Services Committee said its biggest objection to the step-in-grade system was "the concept that no person should receive an in-grade increase if someone senior to him determined that his service was unsatisfactory."

Under this system, the Committee said, "an individual could be denied an in-grade increase if his service was determined to be unsatisfactory. This might well have been brought about by the action of one man. The present system by which officers must be selected, by a selection board, to the next higher grade is the only fair system that has yet been devised to weed out the inefficient and the non-performers. And, this system does weed out the inefficient and the non-performers.

"Nonselection can unfortunately result in the elimination of competent officers, but nevertheless all officers understand that they are subject to the selective process established by law before they can be promoted to the next higher grade.

Don't Change The Rules

"To now institute a system which might well constitute a one-man selection system for advancement within grade to a higher pay scale would be another attempt to change the rules under which officers have entered the Services."

The Committee said "constant changing of the rules has contributed greatly to the nonretention of officer personnel."

The longevity system, the Committee said, "appears to be the only reasonable system that can continue to offer pay incentives to members of the Armed Services who can no longer anticipate rapid promotion as has been the case in the past. The longevity system does provide incentives for those continuing to serve in the Armed Services even though promotional opportunities are frozen or retarded.

"The longevity system recognizes experience and maturity. The longevity system is effective during any period when there is a decrease in the size of the Armed Services because it provides pay increases in spite of reduced promotional opportunities. It is a system geared to meet the overall needs of the four Services amalgamated into one pay system."

LT. GEN. JAMES H. DOOLITTLE, USAFR, chairman of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics and the Air Force Scientific Advisory Board, is briefed on the F-27 propjet liner, now in production at the Aircraft Division, by W. L. Landers (left), Fairchild vice president and division general manager. The General toured the plant and also was briefed on classified military projects, including the "Bull Goose" missile weapon system. R. S. Boutelle, president of the Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corp. also accompanied General Doolittle on his tour.

Commands 1st Bn.

Lt. Col. Lyman S. Faulkner, USA, formerly with the Continental Army Command headquarters, Ft. Monroe, Va., has been assigned as Battalion Commander, 1st Battalion, 6th Infantry Regiment, Berlin, Germany. THE JOURNAL reported erroneously in its issue of 15 March that Colonel Faulkner would command the 1st Infantry Group.

X-15's "G" Tested For Space Flight

Pilots who will fly the North American X-15 rocket research plane already have been put through many of the trials of space flight.

This was revealed 25 March by Vince Blockley, North American aeronautical human factors engineer, before the Aero Medical Association meeting in Washington. He described the latest series of tests by the National Advisory Committee on Aeronautics at the Naval Air Development Center, Johnsville, Pa.

During the tests, North American pilot Scott Crossfield, Capt. Iven Kincheloe, USAF, and NACA pilot Joe Waligorski were subjected to complex "G" forces produced in the laboratory's centrifuge. Whirled around at great speeds in a spherical gondola at the end of a 504-tubular steel arm, the pilots were subjected to the maximum "G" forces the X-15 is built to withstand.

In the interior of the gondola, equipment like the X-15's cockpit, the pilots followed a flight problem electronically flashed on a viewing screen. High speed cameras recorded the "flights" shown on the screen and simultaneously film the pilot's face and his responses as he moved the controls.

The results of these tests, Mr. Blockley said, proved that man is physically ready for space flight and will be able to endure the most extreme forces of acceleration and motion on the X-15 or other similar planes.

PRaise For Pay-Bill WORKERS

Bouquets handed out at the conclusion of the House Armed Services Committee's consideration of the new military pay bill cited four officers, two civilians and one enlisted man for invaluable assistance.

The Committee members praised Mr. (Col.) John R. Blandford, USMCR, the pay subcommittee counsel, for his "brilliant" work in connection with the pay study. Mr. Blandford gave due credit to these seven individuals who assisted him: RADM. Joseph Hoyt, USNR, Ret.; Lt. Col. Leo Benade, USA, MSC; Cdr. Frank Slatinshek, USNR; Miss Frances Pepper, Navy Department; Brig. Gen. Frank Corbin, USAF; Mr. Joseph B. Glenn, and Pfc Frank Irish, USA, both of the Office of the Secretary of Defense.

Military Space Use Called "Exaggerated"

President Eisenhower's Science Advisory Committee believes the military use of space has been exaggerated.

The Committee, headed by Dr. J. R. Killian, Jr., has prepared a report titled, "Introduction To Outer Space," which reads, in part:

"Much has been written about space as a future theatre of war, raising suggestions as satellite bombers, military bases on the moon and so on. For the most part, even more sober proposals do not hold up well on close examination or appear to be achievable at an early date."

The report continues: "Granted that they will become technologically possible, most of these schemes, nevertheless, appear to be clumsy and ineffective ways of doing a job."

The Committee said, however, "there are important, foreseeable military uses for space vehicles, mainly in the fields of communications reconnaissance and meteorology."

New Navy Chaplain Chief; AF General Heads Aero Medical Association; Other Service Names Figure In News

RADM. GEORGE A. ROSSO, USN, will become the 10th Navy Chief of Chaplains in June when he succeeds RADM. Edward B. Harp, jr., USN, who becomes 11th Naval District Chaplain in San Diego after a four-year tour in Washington. Admiral Rosso, a Catholic, has been Assistant Director of the Chaplains Division. He holds the rank of Domestic Prelate with the title of Right Reverend Monsignor.

RADM. Rosso

BRIG. GEN. M. S. WHITE, USAF (MC), is the new President of the Aero Medical Association. He is Director of Medical Staffing and Education for the Air Force Surgeon General. A flight surgeon for more than 20 years, in 1940 he made the first electrocardiograph recordings and the first complete scientific study of heart action in high-altitude flying. Five years later, he was a member of the Air Force group which pioneered the first scheduled round-the-world military air transport flights in six days.

GENERAL and MRS. CURTIS E. LEMAY are attending Royal New Zealand Air Force Day observances at Ohakea Airdrome 29 March. The USAF Vice Chief of Staff and Mrs. Lemay will participate in the 21st anniversary of the Royal New Zealand Air Force in response to an invitation extended by the New Zealand government.

COL. PAUL H. SYMBOL, USA, assigned to the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics, will become District Engineer for the Corps of Engineers in Walla Walla, Wash., in July. He will succeed Col. Myron E. Page, jr., assigned to the Office of the Army Chief of Engineers.

RADM. CLAUDE V. RICKETTS, USN, Commander, Destroyer Flotilla Four, succeeds RADM. Lawson P. Ramage, as Director, Surface Type Warfare Division, Office of the CNO in August. Admiral Ramage becomes Commander, Cruiser Division Three, in September.

MAJ. GEN. LEIGHTON I. DAVIS, USAF, Commanding General of the Air Force Missile Development Center, Holloman AFB, N. M., will be reassigned to Headquarters, Air Research and Development Command, Andrews AFB, Md., as Deputy Commander for Research and Development. He is scheduled to report 1 August. His successor, Brig. Gen. Daniel E. Hooks from the 1009th Special Weapons Squadron, Washington, D. C. will arrive sometime before 1 July.

EDGAR E. "RIP" MILLER, Assistant Athletic Director at the U. S. Naval Academy, was honored by the Academy Association of New York City at a testimonial dinner 21 March. He received the Association's Achievement Award for "outstanding service, loyalty and devotion" to the Academy for more than 32 years. Admiral Jerauld Wright, SACLant and CinCLantFlt, was principal speaker. Among the high-ranking active duty and retired officers on hand was Fleet Admiral William F. Halsey. Coach Miller joined the Academy staff in 1926 as Assistant to Bill Ingram. He was Head Coach of the Navy Eleven from 1931 to 1933. Under Knute Rockne, in the early 1920's, "Rip" was one of the "Seven Mules" who did the blocking for the famed "Four Horsemen."

ALGIE A. WELLS, an Army security intelligence officer assigned to the Manhattan Project during WWII, has been named Deputy General Counsel of the Atomic Energy Commission. He succeeds Edward Diamond, who becomes AEC's Associate General Counsel.

BRIG. GEN. WILLIAM E. EUBANK, JR., Commander of the 93d Bombardment Wing, has received the City of Stockton, Calif. Chamber of Commerce Award. The award is reserved for military, governmental and civilian figures who render outstanding service to the country.

MAJ. JOSEPH BOYLE, USA, of Ft. Benning, Ga., has won the Georgia State AAU junior singles handball championship. He joined with Ft. Benning teammate, Lt. John Brake, to win in the State doubles matches.

BRIG. GEN. PAUL R. WEYRAUCH, Ft. Stewart, Ga., CG, will report to the Caribbean Command at Quarry Heights, C. Z., in May. He will be accompanied by his wife and son, Paul T.

BRIG. GEN. ERIC H. F. SVENSSON, Joint U. S. Military Mission to Turkey, will take over as Commanding Officer of Ft. Stewart in May.

LUCY DIEBOLT has completed the Commanders Radar Bombing Familiarization course at Mather AFB, Calif.—the second Mather woman civil service employee to go through the course in the nine years of its operation.

LT. COL. CHARLES D. YANKAUER, USAF, departing Information Services Officer at Itazuke AB, Japan, has received a Certificate of Appreciation from the Governor of Fukuoka Prefecture and the Fukuoka Mayor. He goes to the Ninth AF at Shaw AFB, S. C.

Secretary Brucker Restates Support For 925,000 Army With 700,000 Reserve

SECRETARY of the Army Wilber M. Brucker has restated to Congress his contention that a balanced military force requires an active Army of 925,000 and a 700,000 man Reserve Force.

Testimony taken in secret session and made available by Representative Overton Brooks (D-La), Chairman of a House Armed Services Subcommittee that has been looking into cuts in the National Guard, show Secretary Brucker as declaring:

"In order to have enough strength to do the job, the 925,000 for the Regular service should be available, and the number of divisions, regimental combat teams, and so on, should be there; and not divorced from it, the 700,000 for the Reserve, breaking down to 400,000 for the Guard and 300,000 for the USAR."

The budget asks 870,000 for the Active Army, 460,000 for the National Guard and 270,000 for the Reserve.

There have been press reports to the effect that Secretary Brucker endorsed the cut in Guard strength to 360,000 in the fiscal '59 budget.

Repeatedly during the testimony before the Brooks Subcommittee, Secretary Brucker made the point that he has consistently recommended the 400,000 figure as part of the overall Army manpower package. He explained that the cut to 360,000 was made by appropriate higher authorities at the Department of Defense and Budget Bureau levels.

Chances appear good that Secretary Brucker's original recommendations regarding the strength of the Guard and the Reserve will be supported by upward changes in the budget, but it's improbable that the Active Army strength will be raised to the 925,000 level.

On the matter of the Guard cut, Secretary Brucker made it a point to relate that as a former Governor of Michigan he has long been aware of the importance of a strong National Guard.

The Secretary noted that Guard units are expected to assume increased responsibilities in connection with the Nike program.

Asked to comment on the general idea that when Regular strength goes down, Reserve strength goes up, Secretary Brucker responded:

"Well, I have heard that concept and can understand the reason why some might say that that is good. I have never heard that that should be done at the expense of the Regular Establishment at a time when the Regular Establishment has determined, or at least recommended, that its strength should be held at a fixed amount.

"And I most certainly feel that in this climate at the present time we in the Regular service—and I have to look at the Regular and also the National Guard and the United States Army Reserve; they are all three a part and parcel of the Army. We must not at this juncture consider robbing Peter to pay Paul. It would be very poor military psychology, and would be a lack of balance if we stressed only one type of forces and forgot that it is a balanced thing that we have to have, and it shouldn't be either at the expense of the other. That is why I have not at any time forsaken my recommendation with respect to the Reserve components.

"In other words, my recommendation was not made in the vacuum about 925,000 for the Army. It was made for both, because I felt that it was a balanced military program and not a question of whether one should go down and the other up, or something of that kind, but that the strength that is needed from a military standpoint should be there for all components and parts of it."

Navy Plans New Amphibious Force To Land Marine Corps 'Copters And Assault Teams

New Atlantic Task Force, Page 6

The Navy has asked Congress for authority to build 41 amphibious warships and landing craft, including "carriers" for Marine Corps assault teams.

One of the new vessels, to cost $40 million, will be a 592-ft. amphibious assault ship which looks like an aircraft carrier. Equipped with flight deck and hangar, the ship will carry 20 large Marine Corps assault helicopters and about 2,000 troops and their assault equipment.

One such ship already is being constructed, and Admiral Harry D. Felt, Vice CNO, said "additional ships of this type are planned for the future."

Another new ship will be a $29 million amphibious transport dock ship—first of her class. Like the assault vessel, the dock ship will carry six Marine transport helicopters. The vessel also will carry landing craft which can be launched through an opening in the stern while the ship is underway.

Adm. Felt

Amphibious Partner

Admiral Felt told the House Armed Services Committee that the amphibious transport dock ship will be "the partner" for the amphibious assault ship. He said the new vessel will transport and land about 900 troops together with their equipment. "It will be the means by which equipment and cargo that is essential for landing force operations but too heavy to be transported by helicopter will be delivered ashore to complement the assault elements landed by helicopter," he said.

One mariner merchant hull will be converted under the program "to a much improved amphibious attack transport," equipped to carry 29 landing craft, two transport helicopters and a Marine Corps battalion landing team with essential assault equipment. The vessel will be the flagship of the amphibious squadron commander.

CNO Tells Need

Admiral Arleigh A. Burke, Chief of Naval Operations, told the Committee earlier that the Navy was planning to build sufficient amphibious ships to land two Marine Corps divisions. He said the vessels would be designed "to permit maximum utilization of the vertical assault technique."

No additional details were provided on the 39 new amphibious landing craft to be constructed under the program. It was expected that the Navy would discuss these vessels in greater detail in hearings scheduled by the Committee as THE JOURNAL went to press.

NO MORE BUDOCKS

The House Armed Services Committee has approved legislation changing the name of the Navy's Bureau of Yards and Docks to the Bureau of Civil Engineering.

Congress Gets "White Charger"

"White Charger" will arrive at the Capitol no later than Monday, 31 March.

The much-discussed personnel legislation, designed to weed out officers who are not adequately performing the duties of their rank, has been officially titled "The Career Officer Management Plan."

Assistant Secretary of Defense William H. Francis, Jr., disclosed 26 March that the plan won Administration clearance the day before and will be transmitted to the Congress "no later than" 31 March.

He made the announcement in testimony before the Stennis Armed Services Subcommittee on Military Pay.

Chairman John C. Stennis (D-Miss.) and other members of the subcommittee have said they would like to consider the proposal, and other management plans, before they take final action on the military pay bill.

A number of the Senators have expressed the belief that the new military pay system cannot become fully effective until the "hump" areas in the officer ranks are thinned out.

General Nathan F. Twining, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said this is undoubtedly true, but it cannot be done "overnight." He said the situation "should be corrected, and I believe it will be, but it may take three or four years."

He said he does not believe that Congressional consideration of the "White Charger" legislation should be permitted "to hold up action on the pay bill."

Navy Gives More Medical Care To Other Services Than It Receives, Says Surgeon General; Believes in "Freedom of Choice"

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Reference is made to an item appearing on page 12, of your JOURNAL dated 11 January 1958, under column "Memo," captioned "Military Medical Care," which was recently brought to my attention.

It can be inferred from reading this item that the Medical Department of the Navy does not cooperate or participate in medical care programs jointly affecting all the uniformed services, and acts independently in the Washington, D. C. area.

The Memorandum alluded to by the item deals with the zoning of the Washington Metropolitan area into areas for the provision of medical care. The purpose of the Memorandum is largely to delineate areas for the provision of dependents' inpatient and outpatient care. The dependents in delineated zones would be required to go to the medical facility in that zone irrespective of service affiliation for outpatient care and similarly would be required to go to the military hospital providing hospitalization for that zone irrespective of the military service to which the sponsor was attached. Certain exceptions are provided to allow, in some instances, service dependents to go to the military medical facility or hospital of their sponsor's attachment; in general, however, the Memorandum is restrictive to the medical facility servicing a delineated zone.

The Medical Department of the Navy does not subscribe to a regulation which is so restrictive in its application and which would allow a service dependent no freedom of choice as to whether or not the service dependent could or could not go to a medical facility of the service to which the sponsor is attached. Such restriction is contrary to the prevailing philosophy of freedom of choice inherent to the Dependents' Medical Care Program.

The Medical Department of the Navy fully subscribes to the principle of joint utilization of medical facilities of the uniformed services and is providing both inpatient and outpatient medical care for dependents of service personnel irrespective of service affiliation or zone in which residing, con-

AF In Clean Sweep Of Aero Med Awards

The Air Force took all awards at the Aero Medical Association's annual Honors Night Dinner 26 March at the Statler Hotel, Washington, D. C.

Divided equally between Air Force officers and civilian scientists, the Aero Medical honors went to: Dr. Hubertus Strughold, Medical Research Advisor, School of Aviation Medicine, Randolph AFB, Tex.; Col. Harry G. Mosley, USAF, Directorate of Flight Safety Research, Norton AFB, Calif.; Dr. Sigfried J. Gerathewohl, Air Force School of Aviation Medicine, Randolph AFB, Tex., and Brig. Gen. Victor A. Byrnes, USAF, Director of Professional Services, Office of the Air Force Surgeon General, Washington, D. C.

Dr. Strughold received the Theodore C. Lyster Award, named after the first surgeon general of the Army Signal Corps' Aviation Section, for his outstanding contributions to the general field of aviation medicine. The Raymond F. Longacre Award was given to Colonel Mosley for his work in the psychological aspects of aviation medicine and accident prevention.

Dr. Gerathewohl was honored with the Arnold D. Tuttle Award for his basic research in aviation medicine.

sistent with bed capacities and medical personnel.

In this latter respect it is desired to point out that the Navy consistently provides, world-wide, more inpatient and outpatient care to servicemen and their dependents, of other services, than it in turn receives from the other services. The enclosed charts graphically bear this out.* Chart (1) shows the average number of beds occupied monthly during calendar year 1957 by Army and Air Force service personnel and their dependents in naval hospitals in comparison with the number of beds in Army and Air Force hospitals occupied by Navy and Marine Corps personnel and their dependents in Army and Air Force hospitals. Chart (2) similarly shows the amount of outpatient work provided Army and Air Force personnel and their dependents in naval hospitals in comparison with the amount of outpatient work provided in Army and Air Force medical facilities to naval personnel and their dependents.

I trust that the foregoing information and statements will serve to correct any wrong impression which you or the writer of the item referred to may have in connection with the participation and cooperation of the Medical Department of the Navy in all areas in which medical care is rendered to members of the uniformed services and their dependents.

Should you desire further information in this regard, my office will be pleased to comply with your request.

Sincerely yours,

B. W. HOGAN

REAR ADMIRAL, MC, USN
SURGEON GENERAL

* Two charts accompanied Admiral Hogan's letter: Chart 1 showed an average of 789 beds occupied by Army personnel in Navy hospitals in 1957, while 733 beds in Army hospitals were occupied by Navy personnel; 659 beds in Navy hospitals occupied by Air Force personnel, while 220 beds in Air Force hospitals were occupied by Navy personnel. Chart 2 covered interservice outpatient work units in 1957 and showed 329,000 Army cared for by Navy, and 292,000 Navy cared for by Army; 256,000 Air Force by Navy, and 127,000 Navy by Air Force.

Chemical Chief Extended Two Years

President Eisenhower has extended Maj. Gen. William M. Creasy, USA, for two more years as Chief Chemical Officer.

Maj. Gen. Creasy

His four year statutory tour of duty, which expires 6 May, was extended at the recommendation of Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker. General Creasy was appointed Chief Chemical Officer in May 1954. At the time he was serving as Commanding General of the Army Chemical Center and the Chemical Corps Research and Engineering Command, at Edgewood, Maryland.

MAJ. GEN. DOUGLAS V. JOHNSON, Third Army Deputy CofS has departed for duty with the JCS. His wife, Helen Jeanne, and two children will remain at Ft. McPherson, Ga., until the end of the school year.

BRIG. GEN. JAMES F. AMMERMAN, 9th Division Artillery Commander, Ft. Carson, Colo., has left for the Eighth Army in Korea.

BRIG. GEN. RICHARD J. WERNER, Senior Advisor to the First Republic of Korea Army, leaves Korea 31 March to become Third Army Chief of Staff, Ft. McPherson. His son, 1st Lt. Robert C. Werner, is stationed in Korea as Executive Officer, Company B, Second Battle Group, 12th Cavalry, First Cavalry Division.

BRIG. GEN. JACK W. SCHWARTZ will arrive in Hawaii 16 April to command Tripler Army Hospital. Formerly Commander of the Madigan Army Hospital, Tacoma, Wash., he will be joined by his wife in June.

BRIG. GEN. BENJAMIN T. HARRIS, Deputy Post Commander at Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo., will arrive in Ankara, Turkey, about 20 April to be Chief of the Army Element, Joint American Military Mission. He will be accompanied by his wife, Ruth, 1st Lt. Robert W. Bauchspies, aide-de-camp, and Sgt. DeWayne Davenport, his personal driver.

Army's Lab Beats Industry In Making Things Smaller, Builds 'Shoe Box' Radar

The Army's Diamond Ordnance Fuze Laboratories has beaten all the nation's civilian industries at the big job of making things smaller.

Lt. Col. Ulrich

For this accomplishment, it was awarded the first Annual Miniaturization Award by Miniature Precision Bearings, Inc., of King, N. H. Presentation was made 24 March in New York City to Lt. Col. John A. Ulrich, USA, DOFL Commander.

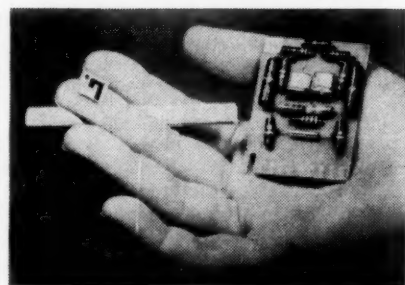

Diamond Laboratories was selected to receive the award for its work in developing a new concept to miniaturize electronic parts and sub-assemblies by photolithographic processes and printing techniques. As a result of the new process, DOFL was able to develop a miniaturized transistor smaller than a man's fingernail.

'Double Dividend' Dollars

Living up to its motto, "Defense Dollars Deliver Double Dividend," Diamond personnel have developed a wealth of commercially used processes and devices as by-products of their military research.

Latest of its contributions to civilian industry is a shoe-box-size radar set, inexpensive enough to use on small planes. The military application of this radar is still classified.

Diamond personnel also claim credit for the first proximity fuses used during World War II, and for the first printed circuits, now used by the radio and television industry to replace manually soldered wires.

Under Ordnance Chief

Until 1953, DOFL was part of the National Bureau of Standards in Washington, D. C., where it still makes its home. At that time it was designated a class II Ordnance Installation, operating under the Army Chief of Ordnance.

Its 1400 technical and supporting personnel are divided into four major laboratories, concentrating on projectile fuzes, electromechanical fuzes, guided missile fuzes and general research support. Mr. Wilbur S. Hinman, Jr., is technical Director. Capt. Hilary E. Kelson is the Assistant to Colonel Ulrich.

Col. Wagner Gets McPherson

Col. Seiss E. Wagner has been named Commander of Ft. McPherson, Ga. He succeeds Lt. Col. Fred J. Owens, who remains as Deputy post commander.

Colonel Wagner comes to Ft. McPherson from Minneapolis, Minn., where he was Deputy Commander of the XIV Corps of the Army Reserve.

Col. and Mrs. Wagner will live at Quarters 18 on "Staff Row," Ft. McPherson. They have two daughters, Julia Courtland, 21, and Margaret Dent, 13, and one son, Seiss E., Jr., 15.

Capt. Worley Describes New Army Developments

"A Digest of New Developments in Army Weapons, Tactics, Organizations and Equipment" by Capt. Marvin L. Worley, Jr., USA, has been published by the Military Service Publishing Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

The 261-page book covers equipment and tactics which have been adopted for standard use as late as 1960, plus future trends for the 1960-1970 period. It lists at $3.50 per copy.

Army Selects Martin For Pershing Missile

Secretary of the Army Wilber M. Brucker announced 25 March the selection of the Martin Company as system contractor for the Army's new solid propellant Pershing Missile System.

The program will involve several million dollars immediately and is expected to amount to a multi-million dollar program over the course of the next few years.

The Martin Company has designated Orlando, Fla., division to carry out the project. (An on-the-spot report from the Orlando facility was published in The Journal 15 February.)

The Pershing Missile, named in honor of General of the Armies John J. Pershing, will be the most advanced of the Army's ballistic missiles for future use. Development is under control of the Army Ballistic Missile Agency, Redstone Arsenal, Ala., and within the responsibilities of the recently announced U. S. Army Ordnance Missile Command commanded by Maj. Gen. J. B. Medaris.

As systems contractor, the Martin Company will be responsible for research and development, reliability testing and production not only of the missile itself but of the associated ground equipment and will furnish ancillary services such as engineering, maintenance, training and field service.

The new missile will be lighter, smaller and "even more mobile" than the Redstone system which it will eventually replace. Contract administration will be under cognizance of the Birmingham Ordnance District.

TC Research Head Returns To Alaska

Col. William N. Redling, USA, 6th Floyd Avenue, Springfield, Va., will soon transfer from his post as U. S. Army Assistant Chief of Transportation (Research and Development) to an assignment with Headquarters, U. S. Army Alaska. His replacement has not yet been named.

In charge of Transportation Research & Development for the past three years

Colonel Redling has been responsible for research and development of aircraft, amphibious vehicles, inland waterway craft, harbor craft, marine terminal and railroad equipment for the Army.

Among some of the more significant equipment developed or contracted for during Colonel Redling's tenure were vertical take-off and landing aircraft utilizing tilting rotors, ducted fans, tilt-wing and deflected slipstream as approaches for achieving new flight capabilities; an off-road logistics cargo carrier for remote areas travelling on 10 foot high low pressure tires and capable of carrying 100 tons of cargo. Application of atomic power to the latter is currently under study.

Col. Redling

Chaplain Connelly To Chicago

Chaplain (Col.) John K. Connelly, P. Dix, N. J., chaplain for the past three years, becomes Fifth Army Chaplain in Chicago 1 April.

Father Connelly is among the survivors of the surprise attack on Pearl Harbor. Later, he joined troops on the landing beaches of Buna, Guadalcanal, Munda, Luzon and Leyte, stayed with them through four years of jungle fighting and was on hand at the dramatic surrender of Japan's Osaka Garrison in 1945.

The chaplain earned a Purple Heart for his battle wound at New Guinea, the Bronze Star with four oak leaf clusters and the Soldier's Medal for heroism at the risk of his life.

NEATNESS THAT LASTS

a tropical-weight uniform containing "Dacron" keeps you looking your best

Lightweight uniforms made with "Dacron" polyester fiber are remarkably comfortable, amazingly easy to care for. Because they're made with a high percentage of "Dacron", they have built-in wrinkle resistance... keep their press through many wearings. Next time you order uniforms, remember you get lasting neatness, longer life in uniforms made with "Dacron".

A NEW TYPE SEAPLANE TENDER, to be constructed under the 1959 shipbuilding program, services two seaplanes simultaneously. She will be a converted WWII Landing Ship Dock and used to support the Martin-built P6M "Seamaster." The ship will bear the hull letters "AV" and will serve as a home base for P6M's when they become operational. The ship houses replacement personnel, maintenance shops, ammunition, fuel and other supplies. The ship is shown with one of her booms extended to provide replenishment and repair services. The "Seamaster" in the foreground could not be repaired while waterborne, so has been floated into the ship's well for drydock overhaul.

NAVY PEOPLE "BUS IT"; ARMY, AF CARS STAY

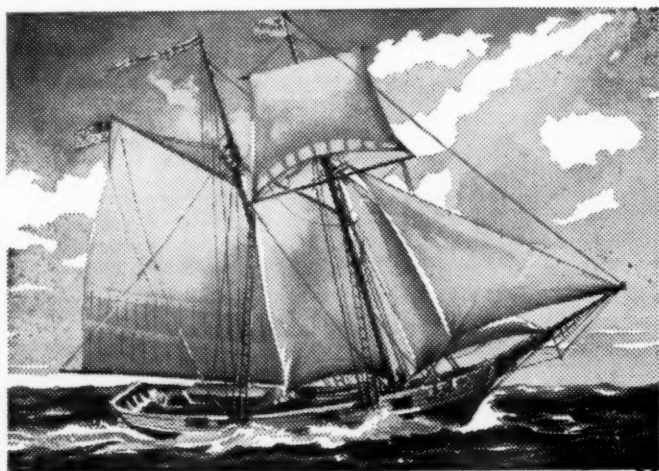

Navy Department personnel in the Pentagon and Washington area will be forced to ride the bus from now on instead of using Navy cars on official business.

The 16-car Navy motor pool which serviced all Navy Department bureaus, boards and offices has been discontinued. The Office of the Chief of Naval Operations, however, will still retain a small car pool for its own use.

The transportation cut was attributed by Navy officials to "mainly economic reasons."

To travel between the myriad of buildings which house Navy offices, personnel will now have to use the scheduled Defense Department or Navy bus service, in some cases walking long distances between buildings to catch the buses.

They cannot use cars from the Army or Air Force motor pools, which will remain in operation.

Navy Develops System To Keep Check On Spacemen; Aids Diagnosticians

THE Navy has developed a technique for sending physiological information by radio and telephone.

The new transmission system was worked out by Project RAM (Research Astronautical Medicine), under direction of Capt. Norman Lee Barr, MC, Deputy Director of the Research Division, Bureau of Medicine and Surgery.

The achievement will permit measurement of the physical condition of future animal and human occupants of space vehicles. Information can be relayed from pick-up stations in remote parts of the world to the Naval Medical Research Institute at Bethesda, Md., over the Navy's worldwide communications network.

By utilizing electrical impulses generated in the body and by converting other measurements such as body temperature and respiratory volume into electrical impulses, doctors will be able to keep a constant check on spacemen. The impulses generated are amplified as required and caused to modulate an oscillator or radio transmitter. The data received is recorded on magnetic tape to provide a permanent record.

In addition to its application to future space flight, the system offers an immediate advantage in the field of medicine. Specific information can be forwarded from isolated doctors and small clinics in need of advice from specialists in large cities. The essential information can be sent over the phone and the specialist can hear the heart murmurs, watch pulse pressures and have the entire examination episode recreated in his office.

If the consultant is not immediately available, the information can be recorded on tape for later examination.

Navy Builds "Ready-To-Go" ASW Reserve Force; Plans Call For 80 Ships By 1962

A fast-reacting "Ready" Reserve force is being formed by the Navy to meet the threat of a surprise nuclear attack and to ward off large scale assault by an enemy submarine fleet.

Known officially as the Selected Reserve Force, the organization's purpose is to build a force of destroyers and destroyer escorts within the Reserve which can be placed in operation within two hours after outbreak of hostilities.

Plans call for stationing of anti-submarine ships on the East and West Coasts to be used for weekend training of Reservists.

Slated For Moth Balls

A Navy spokesman said the plan calls for assignment of about 80 DD's and DE's for this purpose by 1962. He explained that the ships will be phased into the new Reserve program from among ships currently assigned to the active Fleet. The DD's and DE's were slated for the Mothball Fleet. The losses in the Active Fleet will be made up by new construction vessels.

ASW ships assigned to the Selected Reserve will be maintained "in commission" or "in service" status by small crews of Regular officers and men. Re-

RADM. THACH LEADS 'FORCE ALPHA'

RADM. John S. Thach, Commander, Carrier Division 16, has been named to command "Force Alpha," a new task group being formed to do advanced antisubmarine training work.

In setting-up the new Force, Admiral Jerauld Wright, Commander-in-Chief, U. S. Atlantic Fleet, said the unit "will fulfill a need for more permanence in the assignment of all types of antisubmarine air, surface and submarine forces for testing and developing the coordinated tactics and methods for fighting submarines with new and advanced weapons... By assigning units for an extended period of as much as 18 months to work together against target submarines, we expect to achieve greater efficiency in the use of modern weapons and equipment."

Admiral Thach's new force will be made up of an aircraft carrier with its air group of antisubmarine planes, a helicopter squadron, destroyers, shore-based patrol planes and submarines.

The unit will be under the operational control of VADM. Frank T. Watkins, Commander, Atlantic Fleet Antisubmarine Defense Force. He has set early April as the target date for formation of the group.

servants assigned to each ship in the program will be given pre-cut assignment orders which state that they are to report immediately to their "home" ships in emergency situations.

The destroyers will remain "in commission" and ultimately will have an active duty allowance of eight officers and 110 enlisted men.

The destroyer escorts will be redesignated "in service" and have active duty allowances of two officers and 33 enlisted men.

The Coastal Reserve crews will be backed up by inland Reserve groups who will be trained to bring each ship up to its full war strength. These groups also will be provided with pre-cut orders assigning them to specific ships.

The mission of each Reserve Crew will be reflected in the title it bears. Crews will be designated by the name and number of the ship to which they are assigned, for example, USS JONES Reserve Crew DD-000.

Each ship will have access to Naval Reserve Training Center equipment. Similar organizations are being planned for ASW aircraft Squadrons.

The ships and planes will be prepared to deploy to pre-planned patrols.

YOU CAN PAY MORE... BUT YOU CAN'T BUY BETTER COVERAGE

No officer of the US Armed Forces would dare drive his automobile without insurance. Not only must the insurance be adequate to meet possible claims, but it must be with a sound company.

When you insure with USAA you are insuring with an association that has been serving the services since 1922. Assets at year end 1956 totaled $39,363,975 and during the same year over $15 million dollars were paid for losses and adjustments.

USAA understands the problems of those in the US Armed Forces, for active and retired officers manage and direct the Association.

USAA operates as a non-profit association... serving the officers of the US Armed Forces, a preferred risk group.* No salesmen are employed nor any commissions paid. Selling is done by mail.

No other insurance company offers automobile insurance for the US Armed Forces officer at a lower cost than that made available to USAA members. Currently stateside policyholders save 36% of standard rates on automobile insurance.

Whether you are stateside, or overseas, USAA is as close as your nearest mailbox, telephone or telegraph office. Your USAA insurance becomes effective as of postmarked time of application, unless a later date is specified.

Sidewinder Awards To Two Companies

Navy contracts totaling $25 million for continued production of Sidewinder guided missiles have been awarded to Philco Corporation, Philadelphia, Pa., and the Light Military Electronic Equipment Department of General Electric Company, Utica, N. Y.

Philco Corporation's contract amounts to approximately $15 million; General Electric's to nearly $10 million. The two contracts are to meet the requirements of both the Navy and Air Force.

Sidewinders have been in operational use for nearly two years with the Navy's Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean and Seventh Fleet in the Western Pacific. An improved version of the missile is now in service by the Navy and Marine Corps air groups. The Air Force is also arming some of its newest jet fighters with this nine-foot, 155-pound missile which is fully maneuverable at supersonic speeds and effective at altitudes over 50,000 feet.

ARDC Research Center Closed For Economy

The Air Research and Development Command will close its Air Force Personnel & Training Research Center (AFPTRC), Lackland Air Force Base, Tex., on 15 April as an economy measure.

Responsibilities formerly held by this center for developing new and improved training and assignment techniques are to be transferred to other ARDC centers.

The administration of classification tests and officer qualifying tests shift to the Personnel Laboratory under ARDC's Wright Air Development Center (WADC), Dayton, Ohio. The laboratory includes the Airman Proficiency Test Branch which operated as the 2200th Testing Squadron, Mitchel Air Force Base, Long Island, N. Y.

AFPTRC's Operator and Maintenance Laboratories, Randolph AFB, Tex., and Lowry AFB, Colo., transferred their projects to the ARDC centers associated with special areas involved.

Centers that will assume added responsibilities are WADC; the Air Force Ballistic Missile Division, Hq. ARDC, Inglewood, Calif.; the Air Force Cambridge Research Center, Bedford, Mass. and the Rome Air Development Center, Griffiss AFB, N. Y.

AF Revises Career School Criteria, Tells Selection Plans For New Classes

The Air Force will raise from 1812 to 2400 the input for the fiscal year '59 Squadron Officer School at the Air University, and simultaneously has told of revisions in criteria for selection for this and other courses.

The new criteria, along with class implementation dates, are summarized as follows:

AFR 53-5, Command and Staff School-

School	Grade Prerequisites	Service Prerequisites	Implementation Dates
Squadron Officer	First Lt (Perm), and Capt (Temp)	3-7 yrs PLS or TFCS	Sep 1958 class
Command & Staff	Capt (Perm), and Maj (Temp or Perm)	Less than 17 yrs PLS or TFCS	Sep 1959 class
Air War College	L/C (Temp or Perm), and Col (Temp)	Less than 21 yrs PLS	Aug 1959 class

ing, is being revised to include the above listed changes in grade and service prerequisites. Target date for distribution of the revised AFR 53-5 is April 1958.

Other changes to this regulation provide for earlier selection and notification of Command and Staff School students. Future Command and Staff School selection boards will operate in August. Selections will be announced in September, approximately one year prior to class starting dates.

A Headquarters USAF letter, dated 12 March 1958, announced FY 1960 war college nomination procedures for officers serving in the grade of lieutenant colonel. Although the bulk of FY 1960 war college spaces will go to colonels, subsequent war college classes will provide for increased participation of lieutenant colonels. The nominations of Air Force lieutenant colonels for August 1959 war colleges are due at HQ USAF not later than 15 May 1958, and selections are tentatively scheduled for July 1958.

AFR 53-16, Armed Forces Staff College is also being revised, and the schedule distribution date is April 1958. The revised regulation includes majors, as well as lieutenant colonels, in the eligibility zone for AFSC. This change was previously announced by HQ USAF letter in December 1957, at which time nomination instructions for Class 25, AFSC were furnished to commands. Selections for Class 25 which convenes in February 1959, will be made by a HQ USAF board early next month. Selections for this class will be announced during the latter part of April.

SAC Will Build ICBM Control Center

The Strategic Air Command will soon begin construction of an $800,000 addition to its underground control center at Offutt AFB, Neb., to house equipment for computing trajectory and space data for its network of ICBM bases.

In addition, SAC will design a three-story superstructure over the new basement to house an Air Combat Intelligence Center.

Lt. Col. Hibner Leads C-130's To Ashiya AB

Detachment One of the 772d Troop Carrier Squadron, attached to the Ninth Air Force's 463d Troop Carrier Wing, Ardmore AFB, Okla., has reported to Ashiya Air Base, Japan.

The eight Lockheed C-130 turbo-props, led by Lt. Col. Edwin L. Hibner, relieves officers and men of the 483d Troop Carrier Wing. The shuffle is part of the Tactical Air Command's rotational policy for combat airlift and fighter-bomber wings.

The Detachment was greeted by Col. William F. Mandt, the 483d's Acting Commander, and Col. Horace Patch, the Wing Executive Officer.

The 772d will spend six months at the Japanese Air Base, supporting the 483d's mission within the USAF's 315th Air Division.

SAC Sets ROTC Training, Names Camp Commander

Fairchild, Lockbourne, Plattsburgh and MacDill AFB have been selected as SAC host bases for 1958 AFROTC summer training units.

Commandants will be Lt. Col. Sydney S. Pidgeon, Fairchild; Lt. Col. V. B. Schoenfeldt, Lockbourne; Lt. Col. Hugh B. Vail, Plattsburgh; and Lt. Col. Sylvan D. Hand, MacDill.

B/G Sullivan Leads AF Corps Of Cadets

Brig. Gen. Henry R. Sullivan, Jr., Commander of SAC's 72d Bombardment Wing based at Ramey AFB, Puerto Rico, becomes Commandant of Cadets at the U.S. Air Force Academy, on 1 August.

He will succeed Brig. Gen. Robert M. Stillman.

He's Handy With Baton And Pistol

New leader of the 3700th USAF Band at Lackland AFB, Tex., is Warrant Officer Henry M. Maciejewski. He comes to Lackland from duties as band director of the 3640th USAF Band at Laredo AFB, Tex.

Mr. Maciejewski, a top hand with firearms, was a member of the .45 caliber pistol team that won the Alaskan Air Command 1954 pistol meet.

Missile Business Soars, Lockheed Chiefs Report

Lockheed Aircraft Corporation missile-satellite sales of almost $73,000,000 during 1957 will "soar nearly 150 per cent" this year.

This report was made 27 March to stockholders by Board Chairman Robert E. Gross and President Courtlandt S. Gross.

Lockheed total sales last year reached $868,315,000—highest in company history—with earnings of $16,309,000. This is $5.52 per share, compared with $5.10 the year before.

A 38 per cent increase in missile development sales was told, highlighted by work on the Navy's Polaris Fleet Ballistic Missile and what is described as a "breath-taking Air Force device—a very large satellite with a recoverable capsule."

Lockheed began 1958 with unfilled orders of $1,280,000,000, including 44 per cent Air Force airplanes and spare parts; 10 per cent Navy aircraft and spares; 13 per cent missiles, satellites and other government research and development; 28 per cent commercial aircraft, parts and services; and 5 per cent military modernization services.

Pay Raise Nears Reality. The overwhelming endorsement given the Services' new pay system by the 366 to 22 vote in the House and the alacrity with which the Stennis Senate Subcommittee went to work on the House bill are dramatic evidences of the sympathetic understanding in Congress of the long-plaguing problem of personnel turnover in the Armed Forces.

The House's action is particularly significant. Old timers say they cannot recall a previous instance where a measure representing so great a change in the system of personnel management in the Armed Services has been approved with such near-unanimity and without any organized opposition. Adding to this significance is the fact that substantial pay raises in a bill involving an increased expenditure of $662-million were approved at a time when the nation is fighting a recession and unemployment is at a 16-year high.

The reason behind this action, of course, is that Congress and the people wisely see that it is a two-edged program—that it will increase the effectiveness of our defense forces and that, by stabilizing personnel and reducing the costly turnover in officers and enlisted men, it will result in appreciable savings during future years.

THE JOURNAL looks back on the history of the movement with considerable gratification. Last Spring and Summer hope for action on the plan was at a low ebb. The Administration, its Bureau of the Budget, and the Department of Defense were so bent on making immediate reductions in expenditures that it was turning thumbs down on any pay revision. Even some other Service publications were giving the plan up for lost and picking flaws in its provisions. But THE JOURNAL never gave up the fight and kept the subject alive by constant and prompt news reporting on all developments and by giving editorial support to the need for a pay revision. The turn in events began to take shape in the Fall when large and influential daily newspapers and a number of national magazines became aware of the problem and the vital need for a solution. Such great publications as the New York Herald-Tribune, the Scripps-Howard newspapers, Readers Digest, Newsweek, Time, Look magazine and many others told their vast audiences what was going on in the Services and what personnel turnovers and retraining programs meant to them as taxpayers. This gave the members of Congress the support they needed to go ahead with a revision even greater than that which the Administration eventually got around to sponsoring.

A great factor in the House, and we hope it will prove the same in the Senate, was the non-partisan manner in which the measure was handled. The skilled and sympathetic leadership of Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Armed Services Committee, Representative Paul J. Kilday (D-Tex.), subcommittee chairman, and Representative Leon H. Gavin (R-Pa.), the ranking minority member of the subcommittee, never once gave the bill a partisan flavor; Democrats and Republicans worked as one team to give the National Defense the best system of personnel management they could work out.

It is possible that the bill will become law in April and go into effect the first of May. From that time on it is up to the Department of Defense and the Services themselves to so employ the new tool of management given them that the American people will have a strong and more effective defense at a more economical price.

General Gavin Retires. On 31 March, Lt. Gen. James M. Gavin leaves the active list after an outstanding military career that saw him rise from an enlisted private in 1924 to a lieutenant

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

Congratulations to General and Mrs. Roy T. Evans (page 12 of THE JOURNAL dated 15 March 1958) who have three sons at West Point.

However, I would like to add a word of praise for my parents Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Pierre Mallett, Ret., who also had three sons at the academy at the same time in 1946 and 1947. I was a First Classman, my brother Dave a Second Classman and my youngest brother, Peter, a Fourth Classman.

Eisenhower's Football Picture

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

On the front page of your 15 March issue there is a picture of President Eisenhower with three unidentified men. You wished to have them identified. The picture was of the then Major Eisenhower in 1922 as the coach of the Ft. Benning football team.

The second man from the left in the picture, who stands beside the President, and who is the tallest one, is without a doubt recognized by me as Maj. Gen. K. L. Berry. The Adjutant General of the Texas National Guard and a retired Brigadier General, U. S. Army. His address is Camp Mabry, Austin, Tex. As he lives in Austin I have not checked this with him, but I am sure that by this time there are many others who have identified him. He played football about that time on the Ft. Benning Team. I have known him and served with him for many years, and that picture couldn't be anyone but "K.L." himself. His full name is Kearie L. Berry, 07220.

Tax on Rent?

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The effort on the part of THE JOURNAL to reduce the "rent" on sub-standard housing is commendable but there is one aspect that I have not seen discussed in any reports of progress published so far. That aspect is the status of the rental allowance with regard to susceptibility to income tax.

For many years it has been the concept that the military man is on duty 24 hours a day, whether at his place of duty or at home. For this reason quarters (when available) were provided so that he was always at hand when needed. In situations where government quarters were not available he has been given a rental allowance to rent quarters nearby. Under this concept neither the quarters nor the rental allowance was considered to be a part of the man's pay and was, therefore, exempt from income tax. In fact the rental allowance is not reported as income.

Now it appears there will be a change. We shall, in effect, be given additional pay and then charged rental on our housing. What effect will this have on our income tax? Will this money now be reported as income?

It would be appreciated if some ruling or opinion could be obtained and published before this new proposal is completely implemented. At the present moment it looks like a booby trap that is going to cost each and every one of us, whether we occupy government quarters or private rental, some $300.00 per year added to our income tax. This may be worse than the present situation. Perhaps some reconsideration would be in order.

COLONEL, CMLC

Editor's Note: The Armed Services Individual Income Tax Council advises that it is holding informal discussions with the Bureau of Internal Revenue on this subject but expects that no part of the quarters allowance will become taxable as a result of the new directive on sub-standard quarters. Quarters allowances are not included in the statement of annual earnings (W-2 form) furnished Servicemen at the end of the year.

the 82d Airborne Division in Normandy in 1944 and later as Division Commander in Holland.

His final assignment as the Army's Chief of Research and Development saw him contributing to the Army of the future by pressing the development of specialized aircraft to fit the Army's particular needs, by giving it the mobility of the air age and permitting it to overcome the obstacles of terrain. He also had a significant part in the Army's missile program. Highly gratifying to him and his associates as he prepared to leave active duty was the Army's successful launching of a second satellite.

On Monday, the 82d Airborne Division will give General Gavin special retirement honors at Ft. Bragg, N. C. Already the possessor of the Distinguished Service Cross with Oak Leaf Cluster, he will receive the second award of the Distinguished Service Medal.

The best wishes of the Service go with him on his retirement.

QUOTES FROM THE JOURNAL

10 Years Ago (28 March 1948)—The Strategic Air Command this week observed the second anniversary of its activation. Local celebrations, many of which included civilian participation, took place throughout the United States. Activated on 21 March 1946 as the long-striking arm of the U. S. Air Force, the Strategic Air Command numbers approximately 45,000 officers and enlisted men.

50 Years Ago (28 March 1908)—There is decided interest in the fate of the bill now before the Senate and House Naval Committees simplifying the summary courts in the Navy. Existing law requires the presence on such courts of three commissioned officers which is a difficult matter to arrange under all circumstances.

90 Years Ago (28 March 1868)—The retired officers of the Army comprise those who have served 40 or more consecutive years; those who have become incapacitated for active duty by long and faithful service, by wounds or injury received or disease contracted from exposure in the line of duty, and, in general, of those who have, from any cause, become crippled in the performance of their duties.

Rapid-Fire Action On Capitol Hill Pushes Pay Raise

listed grades; increased pay raises throughout the pay structure; proficiency pay for enlisted men, and a modified longevity system.

Although some of the House pay rates are "a little higher" than those proposed by the Pentagon, he said the basic pay differentials are adequate to achieve the objectives of the Cordiner Committee.

Regarding longevity, he noted that the Cordiner Committee and the Pentagon both had urged abandonment of the present system. However, he said, the House system marks "a substantial improvement over the old system" because it terminates pay raises at the normal promotion points.

He said the Pentagon is pleased with the action taken by the House on proficiency pay, but would like to see one change in this feature of the bill.

As it passed the House, the bill authorizes the Service Secretaries to determine the skills which are critical in their respective Services. Secretary Francis said the amendment to be proposed by the Pentagon is designed to give the Secretary of Defense authority to establish overall criteria and policies to be followed by all of the Services in compiling their critical skills list.

Following Secretary Francis' statement, Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass.) asked if it is correct that "the Administration approves the House bill?" Secretary Francis replied, "With reservations about the cost."

Senator Stennis praised the work of the Kilday Subcommittee as "very commendable," but he expressed concern because "there is still nothing in the bill to recognize proficiency pay for officers." He said "I think that is a mistake."

The Senate Subcommittee Chairman questioned General Twining closely about this point. He asked the JCS Chairman if he did not think it is becoming more essential "to recognize special skills" among officers.

General Twining said he believes the Armed Forces already are doing just that. More and more officers are becoming specialists, he said, and "those who are best in their skills are the ones who get promoted." But, he added, officers, unlike many enlisted specialists, also have to exercise important command responsibilities.

Senator Stennis said his subcommittee is hopeful that it can complete its recommendations during the Easter Recess (2-14 April). He said the committee will seek additional information from General Electric President Ralph J. Cordiner during that period.

The Defense Department also was asked to furnish additional information, including manpower management plans and further details as to how the Department will solve the question of increased costs raised by the House bill.

The Subcommittee adjourned on 26 March "subject to call of the Chair," after whirlwind action on the military pay bill on both sides of the Capitol.

In the short space of six days:

- The Kilday Subcommittee formally reported the revamped pay measure to the full Armed Services Committee.

- The Armed Services Committee sent the measure to the floor on the same day without dissenting vote.

- The House immediately scheduled floor debate for Monday, 24 March. Due to the death of a Member, debate was delayed for one day.

- On 25 March the House completed action on the multi-million dollar pay plan and sent it to the Senate.

During the House debate only a few voices were raised in protest against the measure, and only two amendments were proposed. One, to authorize pay credit for Academy time, was offered by Representative Edith Nourse Rogers (R-Mass.), but withdrawn before it could be brought to a vote. The other, to provide a "savings clause" for survivor benefits payments, was offered by Congressman Kilday as a committee amendment and was adopted on a voice vote.

A move to bar debate on the bill was defeated by a resounding vote of 380 to 5. After a handful of initial skirmishes, members of the House Armed Services Committee explained the bill almost without interruption—a rare occurrence during debate on a major bill.

The final vote—366 to 22—came three hours and fifteen minutes after the debate had been officially launched.

Congressman Kilday said the new pay rates, which range as high as $653.20 per month for senior officers, "for the first time will put the Armed Services on a competitive basis with industry."

Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.), said the measure "will save an immense amount of money in the long run."

Earlier, the House Committee had reported that enactment of the legislation "will increase the reenlistment rate, will increase the officer retention rate, will increase the retention of a higher number of skilled personnel than has heretofore been accomplished, and will in general make a service career more attractive financially, thus providing an incentive for those individuals who otherwise would decide against a military career purely on the basis that they cannot provide adequately for their families on the present pay scales."

The Committee said the measure "while costly, may well prove to be the most sound investment ever made by the American people."

COMPTROLLER O.K.'S PAYBACK DELAY

A new ruling by the Comptroller General has, in effect, ordered the Navy to hold back its efforts to collect $3,777.16 from former Cdr. Robert B. Rueger.

Dropped from the retired rolls after he was convicted of manslaughter by a civilian court, the former Navy officer continued to receive his monthly retirement checks due to an admitted Navy error.

Following public disclosure of the case in THE JOURNAL, the House Armed Services Committee conducted an investigation and introduced legislation to restore Mr. Rueger's retired pay.

In the meantime, however, the Navy demanded that he return the money.

Through the intercession of Congressman Joel T. Broyhill (R-Va.), the Comptroller General has now ruled that further attempts to collect the money will be deferred pending action on the Rueger relief legislation by Congress.

Total Service Determines New Rates For Officers In All Categories

Total years of service will continue to be counted in computing pay for all members of the Armed Forces under the new House-passed military pay scale.

Some confusion has resulted among officers about the two separate officer pay scales (THE JOURNAL 22 March).

One set of pay scales in the new bill provides special pay rates for second lieutenants, first lieutenants and captains (and equivalent rank in the Navy) who have over four years' cumulative service as enlisted men. Officers in this group will receive higher pay than other officers in the same grade who do not have service as enlisted men, or who served as enlisted men for less than four cumulative years.

Officers in the grade of major/lieutenant commander and higher will receive credit for any enlisted service which they have completed, but this will be counted in their total years of service just as it is now counted. They will receive the same pay as officers with the same total years' service but with no enlisted service.

Army Navy Air Force Journal 11
29 Mar. 1958 (Vol. 95, P. 891)

Col. Nugent Succeeds Retiring Info Chief

Col. Hamilton D. South, Director, Division of Information, Marine Corps Headquarters, retires at his own request 31 March and will be advanced to one-star rank on the retired list. He becomes President of Growth Industries Group, Inc., 1 April. His successor will be Col. Donald R. Nugent, currently serving as Deputy Information Director.

Rep. Kilday Cites Supporters Of Bill

Representative Paul J. Kilday (D-Tex.), whose handling of the pay bill on the floor of the House elicited praise from members of both parties, took occasion to report to the members some of those who have supported the plan.

Mr. Kilday said:

"This morning at about a quarter to 11 Mr. Ralph J. Cordiner telephoned me to state that he had now had an opportunity to study in detail, and thoroughly, the bill which the committee has reported, and he gave me his estimate of it. I asked him if I was at liberty to quote him. He not only gave me permission to quote him but specifically asked that I quote him to the effect that this is excellent legislation. He thinks it is fine and he hopes that it passes. That is from Mr. Cordiner, the chairman of that committee.

"Upon my own responsibility I state that this bill is thoroughly acceptable to the military departments. I state that on my own responsibility. I do that because it is not possible in the present circumstances for the military departments to express any opinion with reference to this bill.

"I can say no one in the military departments has expressed any opposition to the bill, and on my own responsibility, as I said, I can tell you that it is satisfactory to them.

"I can tell you that it is endorsed by the National Guard Association of the United States, by the American Legion, by the Navy League of the United States, the Regular Veterans Association, the Reserve Officers Association, and others, and representatives of 168 industrial firms who were in session under the auspices of the association of the United States Army at Fort Benning, Ga."

DoD's Refusal to Hold Up RIF Program Is Cited By Opponent of Pay Measure

There was little opposition to the passage of the pay bill when it came up on the floor of the House on 25 March, and most of that came from Representatives Clare Hoffman (R-Mich) and George Meader (R-Mich), both of whom voted against the measure. A few others who questioned the wisdom of passing the bill did, however, vote for it on final passage.

The Department of Defense's RIF program of last year came back to haunt them in Mr. Meader's opposition when he said:

"According to testimony later taken by Subcommittee No. 1 of the Armed Services Committee the armed services needed to get rid of 17,000 officers. They proposed to get rid of 70 per cent of them by normal attrition and by cutting inductions. They had to discharge 30 per cent, or 5,000 officers, against their will.

"I have received complaints from officers in my congressional district and I daresay every Member of this House has received complaints from Reserve officers who had spent the best years of their lives in following a military career on the promise they would receive retirement benefits. Then 2 or 3 years short of their eligibility for a pension they were unceremoniously thrown out of the armed services and were compelled to start a civilian career at a time when they had acquired families and a standard of living which made a new start difficult. Five thousand of them received this treatment.

"All that was on the present pay schedule. Are you going to tell us that it is impossible to recruit and retain officer personnel because of poor pay? Look at the officers who were being discharged—lieutenant commanders, majors, lieutenant colonels, commanders, colonels and captains who, under the Cordiner plan, were to get increases of 12 per cent, 31 per cent and 42 per cent, respectively, in their pay.

"The military clique wanted to get these Reserve officers out so that Regular officers, the Service Academy Protective Associations, could be promoted to the positions from which Reserve officers were being removed. "Mr. Speaker, I think this is a very unjust measure. We have no business considering it today at a time when there is unemployment and Government service is more attractive to people than it is in time of full employment. A case has not been made for the bill and I think both the rule and the bill should be defeated."

Mr. Meader then inserted in the Record the text of the letters exchanged between the Department of Defense and Representatives Vinson and Brooks, wherein the Department was adamant in its refusal to hold up RIFs until the committee had an opportunity to study them.

Representative Hoffman's opposition was in generalities, charging that the Armed Services waste money and that they should not be paid more during a period of inflation and unemployment. Finally he shifted his remarks to a defense of the Kohler Company in its relations with the labor unions.

Rep. Gross Hits Ads "Raiding" Personnel

Early in the House discussion of the pay bill, Representative Paul J. Kilday (D-Tex) displayed an advertisement aimed at "trying to induce men to go into private employment." He did this to show the inducements offered to officers and enlisted men to quit the Services for better jobs in industry.

Representative H. R. Gross (R-Iowa) asked him to identify the advertisement, but Mr. Kilday declined saying that it was only one of many.

Later in the discussion, Representative Gross said:

"Earlier this afternoon the gentleman from Texas apparently deemed it impolite to name the company which sponsored an advertisement in the Army Times attempting to raid the Armed Forces of some of their skilled people. I understand that advertisement may have originated with a certain soap manufacturer in this country.

"I intend to get a copy of the advertisement and I tell you I am not going to be a bit squeamish about reprinting it in the Congressional Record together with appropriate remarks, if what I understand is true.

"I do not know why we should be squeamish here this afternoon in identifying that kind of business because this bill, if it has a real purpose, is to retain the skilled people in the armed services. If some of those who are most responsible for this program are engaged in taking these people out of the services, I think the Members of the House and the people of the country ought to know about it."

memo

PAY RESEARCH by the Kilday Subcommittee unearthed the fact that the Services abandoned an in-grade pay system more than 50 years ago in favor of a longevity pay system. The Cordiner Committee had charged that the present longevity pay concept is a "Methuselah" system. If so, the Kilday committee says, it is difficult to describe the step-in-grade system recommended by the Cordiner Report, in view of the fact that a similar system was "discarded in 1899 as being outmoded."

A FULL SCALE, TOP-PRIORITY study of all Service personnel laws has been launched by the Pentagon. The aim is to come up with new personnel regulations and promotion policies which will be more uniform for all of the Services.

GENERAL NATHAN F. TWINING and General Thomas D. White will be the highest paid members of the Armed Forces under the new Kilday pay rates, as a result of their $165 per month flight pay. Both would receive $31,104 annually. The other Service Chiefs, General Maxwell D. Taylor, Admiral Arleigh A. Burke and General Randolph McC. Pate will each receive $29,124. For each of the five officers, the new proposal means an annual increase of $7,188.

GENERAL W. G. WYMAN, CG of the Continental Army Command, received an unusual present on his 60th birthday last week—a chance to handle the controls of a Cessna T-37 jet trainer. The pilot was Lt. Col. Jack W. Ruby, Deputy Director of the Army T-37 Test Detachment. General Wyman, who had been slated for retirement this month, is being kept on active duty until the Summer. His successor is expected to be Lt. Gen. Bruce C. Clark, Seventh Army CG in Germany, who will be replaced by Lt. Gen. C. D. Eddleman, Deputy Chief of Staff for Military Operations.

RESERVE OFFICERS AND REGULARS will be treated exactly alike under the new House-passed pay bill. The Pentagon had proposed that the new pay scales would not apply to Reservists called to active duty for periods of less than 30 days, but this proviso was eliminated by the Kilday subcommittee. Now, Reservists on two-weeks active duty training will receive the same higher rates which apply to their contemporaries in the Regular ranks.

THE MARINE CORPS HAS RELEASED photographs of the German-built UNIMOG, an all-purpose vehicle which the Corps wants to bolster its striking power. An accompanying press release states that the versatility of the vehicle "won great admiration from motor transport experts at the Equipment Board." The Corps, however is being frustrated in its attempts to purchase operational vehicles by the "Buy American" Act and Armed Forces Procurement Regulations. A story disclosing the Corps' plight appeared in The Journal, 15 February.

TWO CATHOLIC CHAPLAINS will be serving as Chaplain Chiefs this Summer. They are Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Ryan, who has been Army Chief of Chaplains since 1 April 1954, and RAdm. George A. Rosso, who will move up from Assistant Director of the Chaplains Division to succeed RAdm. Edward B. Harp, Jr., as Navy Chief of Chaplains. The Air Force Chaplain Chief is Maj. Gen. Charles I. Carpenter, a Methodist, who has held the assignment since 1949. The Deputy Air Force Chaplain Chief is Brig. Gen. T. P. Finnegan, a Catholic.

SARTORIALLY SPEAKING, the Marine Corps Birthday 10 November will be especially colorful. A forthcoming regulation will require generals, colonels and lieutenant colonels to own the evening dress uniform by that 10 date. Majors have until that date 1959, but it can be taken for granted most will purchase the garb this year. Mess dress uniforms must be added to wardrobes of Marine lieutenant colonels and above by 31 May 1959; majors have until a year later.

A 'MESS DRESS' UNIFORM has just been authorized by the Air Force (The Journal 22 March), but strictly on an optional basis for the present. It has a grosgrain collar and lapels similar to civilian dinner jackets.

FAREWELL REVIEWS are becoming souped-up affairs these days, with jet flyovers and other noise-making attractions. The Army's pioneer Pentomic division, the 101st Airborne, can claim some kind of a record for the booming farewell staged 22 March for the commander who activated the unit almost two years ago, Maj. Gen. Thomas L. Sherburne, under orders to Europe. He declined the normal motorcade arrival; instead made a surprise parachute jump from a light Army aircraft onto the parade field. The general's landing was followed by the firing of an Honest John rocket to signal the start of the parade.

A NEW TECHNICAL BULLETIN tells Army officers how to apply black braid to the Green uniform. Advice is given that "tension of the top and bottom threads will be maintained to produce a balanced stitch but will be just heavy enough to pull the sewing thread flat on the surface of the braid." The Army notes that it should take approximately 13 minutes to do the job with the chalk method; "approximately" 16.2 seconds if the pin method is employed.

IN AN OBVIOUS MOVE to buoy national economic spirits, the Services are stepping up announcements of procurement actions. As forecast in The Journal 1 March, the Pentagon has begun making almost daily contract award announcements. The Air Materiel Command this week reported that Air Force procurement during January hit $984,448,000 in 117,507 transactions.

THE CHANGED FISCAL PICTURE in the Armed Forces is strengthening the hand of Service Chiefs in protesting manpower cuts. When the fiscal '59 budget was being firmed, they were under tight restraint to be silent because of the drive to stay within prescribed dollar limits, which were related to the debt ceiling limit. Now that the Services are receiving added funds, the Chiefs are speaking their minds. General Taylor, for example, has made it known he thinks the Army should have 925,000 officers and men, instead of the 870,000 in the budget.

MARINE COMMANDANT PATE has declared in newly released testimony that the Corps needs at least 200,000 men, compared with plans for 188,000. Similarly, CNO Burke has stressed the need for more men to man Navy ships.

A LIKELY RESULT of the manpower pleas will be an assertion by the Appropriations Committees that although severe cuts have been made, the Services must strive, with the help of the new pay legislation, to make up the deficiency by improved utilization of manpower. Even if Congress should vote funds for more men and women in uniform, it's a good bet, barring a change in the international situation, that the Administration will hold the Fighting Forces to the levels planned in the President's budget.

Army-AF Tax Decision Questioned; Revenue Service May Take Action

tinued in such employment, would have had the right to retire without the consent of the employer and receive retirement benefits based on the service to date of retirement computed at the full rate set forth in the plan, i.e., without actuarial or similar reduction because of retirement before some later specified age."

It is not necessarily, the IRS expert said, the age at which the Service would have had the right to retire an individual because of "pass-overs" or other similar reasons.

Naval officers reach "retirement age," the IRS says, after completion of 40 years service or age 62, whichever is earlier. It also states that its conclusions regarding Navy personnel "are applicable with respect to members of the other branches of the Armed Forces under similar circumstances."

IRS authorities told THE JOURNAL they would welcome the opportunity to develop a "retirement age" formula similar to the Navy's, for both the Army and Air Force.

The Army and Air Force, however, have indicated the Navy rule is not applicable to them. As a result they did their own research and came up with definitions of "retirement age" based on a complicated formula of rank, sex, age, component and previous recommendations for promotion or "pass-over."

These determinations do not bind the Revenue Service, which says it will eventually have to make its own inquiry into the matter. Their decisions, IRS authorities say, need not be in accordance with those of the individual military departments.

If the Army and Air Force will not ask the IRS for a "retirement age" decision, these authorities say, they will eventually develop one in deciding the individual tax cases which come before them.

AN ARMY TANKER models a new helmet designed by the Quartermaster Corps specifically for tank soldiers. In the past, armor officers and men wore the standard steel helmet or commercially-produced football helmets. Known officially as the Combat Vehicle Crewman's (CVC) Helmet, the new headgear weighs about three pounds. It is fitted with an adjustable microphone which permits the wearer to communicate by radio or to converse through the tank's intercommunication system. The CVC Helmet is made of layers of laminated nylon fabric similar to the material used in the Army's protective vest.

West Germany Plans Army Matador Units

West Germany's Minister of Defense, Franz Josef Strauss, has revealed that the Bonn Government plans to purchase Martin Matador missiles for its Armed Forces.

He made the revelation 18 March upon arrival in West Germany following a two-week tour of United States military bases and conferences with Pentagon officials.

The Minister said that his Government intends to buy 72 Type-C Matadors and 12 mobile launching platforms for West Germany's defense. He stated that they will not be fitted with atomic warheads but will carry conventional explosives.

The missiles will equip two army groups.

No. 5 In '42 Class Permanent Professor

Lt. Colonel Elliott C. Cutler, jr., has been made a Permanent Professor in the Department of Electrical Engineering at the U. S. Military Academy, where he has been serving as an Associate Professor since July 1955.

Colonel Cutler ranked No. 5 in the USMA '42 class of 374. Commissioned as a second lieutenant in the Infantry, he subsequently was graduated from the Armored School, and (in 1954) from Georgia Institute of Technology from which he holds a Master of Science in Electrical Engineering. Immediately prior to coming to West Point in the summer of 1955, Colonel Cutler attended the Command and General Staff College in Ft. Leavenworth, Kan.

Colonel and Mrs. Cutler, the former Genevieve Spalding of 172 Rumson Road, NE, Atlanta, Ga., reside in quarters at West Point with their two children, Elliott C. III, and Genevieve S.

SERVICE FAMILY NOTES

OFFICERS OF THE ARMED FORCES HOSTESS ASSOCIATION gather at Ft. Myer, Va., for the installation of newly-elected officials. A volunteer organization composed of the wives of officers from all branches of military service, the AFHA welcomes newly arrived officers' wives to Washington and provides information about military installations throughout the world for all Armed Forces personnel. Left to right: Mrs. Walter H. Arnstein, former Office Manager of the Association's Pentagon headquarters; Mrs. Roy M. McCutcheon, outgoing Vice-President; Mrs. John A. Peters, entering her second term as President; Mrs. John G. Van Houten (whose husband is Commanding General of the Military District of Washington), Honorary President; Mrs. Trevor N. Dupuy, Vice President; Mrs. R. W. Koontz, Jr., Secretary-Treasurer; Mrs. C. E. Crow, former Corresponding Secretary and new Office Manager; and Mrs. J. D. Kidd, incoming Corresponding Secretary.

THE Army Chief of Staff and Mrs. Maxwell D. Taylor were hosts at a reception at their Ft. Myer, Va. quarters on the evening of 20 March, honoring the retiring Chief of Research and Development, Lt. Gen. and Mrs. James M. Gavin, and General Gavin's successor, Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Arthur G. Trudeau.

Following his retirement from active duty on 31 March at Ft. Bragg, N. C., General and Mrs. Gavin plan to spend a few months at Southern Pines, N. C.

Mrs. LeMay Is Honor Guest—

One of Washington's large stores presented "The New Look in Millinery Fashion" at the 18 March luncheon of the Andrews AFB Officers' Wives Club.

Mrs. Andrew Boreske, in charge of decorations, achieved a bright Spring-like decor with the use of flowers, boxwood and ivy, and miniature Easter bonnets served as table decorations and favors.

Mrs. Curtis E. LeMay, wife of the Air Force Vice Chief of Staff, who was the honor guest, as leader of the membership drive for the Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airmen's Club of Washington, made a brief speech in its behalf. Also present were Mrs. Dudley D. Hale, President of the SSM&A Club; Mrs. Edward Suarez, wife of the Deputy Commanding General, National War College; and Mrs. James E. Briggs, the guest of her parents, Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Samuel E. Anderson.

Mrs. Oral J. Jensen, President of the Club, thanked Mrs. Thomas S. Moorman for her service to the Club as Honorary Board Member and presented her with a silver urn from the members, a farewell gift, since Mrs. Moorman will be leaving in the near future for her husband's new assignment in the Philippines.

Mrs. William H. McCumber was chairman of the program.

DCS/LOG OWC Style Show—

The Officers' Wives Club of the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Logistics held a luncheon on 19 March at Patton Hall, Ft. Myer.

The program was a Spring fashion show presented by an Arlington, Va., shop.

In the receiving line were Mesdames Frank H. Higgins, Courtney Johnson, Richard D. Meyer, Carter B. Magruder, Honorary President, and Robert F. Alexander, President.

Hostesses for the day were Mrs. Richard D. Meyer and the ladies from the Plans and Programs Directorate.

Navy Drs'. Wives Club Benefit—

The annual benefit luncheon of the Navy Doctors' Wives Club of Washington for the Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airmen's Club, will be held at the Commissioned Officers' Mess, Bethesda, Md., Thursday, 10 April at 12 noon. Luncheon will be followed by a fashion show presented by one of Washington's leading stores.

Heading the list of honor guests invited are Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Mrs. Richard M. Nixon. Chairman and Co-chairman are Mrs. George N. Raines and Mrs. Thirl Jarrott.

Myer Women's Club Luncheon—

The 3 April luncheon meeting of the Ft. Myer, Va. Women's Club will be sponsored by the Military Attaché wives, when the program will feature table settings representing the different countries from which the attaché wives come. These will be on display in the Terrace Room of Patton Hall from 11:30 a.m., to 12:30 p.m., before the receiving line forms.

Those receiving will include the honor guests, Mesdames Nathan F. Twining, Maxwell D. Taylor, Thomas D. White and Randolph McC. Pate.

Navy Wives Tell Plans For Scholarships

Mary Haworth, columnist for the Washington Post and Times Herald, moderated a panel of America's leading newswomen at the March luncheon of the Navy Officers' Wives Club of Washington held at the Shoreham Hotel. The panel members, Bess Furman (N. Y. Times), Esther Van Wagoner Tufty (NBC-TV & Tufty News Bureau), Elizabeth Carpenter (Southwestern Newspapers) and Ruth Geri Hagy (College News Conference ABC-TV) answered and discussed audience-submitted questions ranging from the 1960 Presidential candidates and foreign policy to the role of the Navy wife abroad. Honored guests for the day were Mesdames Garrison Norton, J. Sinclair Armstrong and Richard Jackson, wives of Assistant Secretaries of the Navy. The DCNO (Plans and Policy) wives were hostesses with Mrs. Ruthven E. Libby, wife of the Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Plans and Policy, as senior hostess. The program was one of the many outstanding events inspired by the planning of Mrs. Edward N. Parker, Program Chairman, and her committee.

The Executive Board of the Club has announced completion of plans to make available to a promising candidate a scholarship worth not less than $500, enabling the winner to prepare for the U. S. Naval Academy. Application forms may be obtained by writing Dependents Aid Section, Bureau of Personnel, Pers G-221, Washington 25, D. C., or Mrs. Mell A. Peterson, Sec'y., Scholarship Fund, 3306 Cameron Mills Rd., Alexandria, Va. The deadline for this year's applications is June 15, 1958.

Mrs. McElroy Honored—

The Marine Officers' Wives Club had as guests of honor at a 19 March luncheon, Mrs. Neil H. McElroy, Mrs. Nathan Twining, and Mrs. Maxwell D. Taylor. They served as judges for a "crazy hat" contest.

Winners were Mrs. Henry M. Turner, most original; Mrs. J. G. Demas, prettiest; and Mrs. Paul Pankhurst, most spring-like.

Mrs. Randolph McCall Pate and Mrs. James P. Riseley, President of the club, received members along with the guests of honor.

A talent show was presented under the direction of Mrs. James P. Berkeley. Mrs. A. B. Galatian sang two numbers, accompanied by Mrs. E. A. Osterman. Mrs. Norman Pokinsky played a Chopin waltz and Mrs. Norman Anderson read an article by Mrs. Hamilton South entitled "Military Men Make Miserable Husbands."

A-N-AF Cotillion's Cherry Blossom Dance—

The Army, Navy, Air Force Cotillion sponsored by the West Point Class of 1934 for sons and daughters of Service officers, will hold its fifth dance of the season, at the Ft. Myer Officers' Club, Saturday, 5 April, when the theme will be cherry blossoms. Dancing will commence at 8:30 p.m. with the grand march.

Guests of honor will be the Chief of the Armed Forces Special Weapons Project at the Pentagon, RAdm. (USN) and Mrs. Edward N. Parker.

The junior hostesses will include Misses Judy Capito, Connie Curry, Chris Dorner and Antoinette Towler, with hosts George Mather, Jr., Tom Pachler, Skipper Eisenminger and David Scott. Sponsors for the cherry blossom dance are Brig. Gen. (USAF) and Mrs. John W. White, Col. (USA) and Mrs. Thomas H. Hayes, and Col. (USAF) and Mrs. Thomas L. Crystal.

"Hop cards" will assist the young guests in exchanging dancing partners, and music will be provided by the Noteables, led by Sergeant Marcussen.

Mrs. Gonseth Honored—

The Fireside Room of the Lexington, Ky., Signal Depot Officers' Club, was the recent setting for a tea honoring Mrs. Kenneth M. Gonseth, wife of the Depot's new Commanding Officer, Colonel Gonseth, USA.

Spring pastel sweetpeas centered the tea table, where Mesdames Hugh Reynolds, Earnest C. Chaplin, Joseph E. Brown and K. J. Holmes presided. Hostesses were Mrs. Henry L. Morris and Mrs. James R. Sweeney.

Colonel and Mrs. Gonseth have only recently arrived at the Lexington Depot from Ft. Lee, Va. Mrs. Gonseth, the former Miss Eleanor Bevans, is the daughter of Mrs. Stuart M. Bevans of Washington, D. C., and the late Captain Bevans, USA, (USMA Nov. '18).

The wedding is planned for 3 May in San Diego.

Berlin Bake Aids March of Dimes, Crippled Children Benefit In Alaska

BERLIN, GERMANY—The 6th Infantry Officers' Wives Club will donate $115 from the sale of homemade cookies, cakes and pies, to the March of Dimes and Polio Fund. Project Chairman was Mrs. R. E. Mack, assisted by Mesdames H. L. Zinc, B. W. Weber, Louis Michael, J. C. Sawyer, R. B. Smelser, John A. Michlenzi, W. G. Cash, David R. Palmer, H. R. Brown, Jeff M. Tuten, B. K. Neal, Jr., T. J. Rounsaville, and William A. Hadley.

OAHU, T. H.—The Submarine Officers' Wives Club has contributed $200 to the Waimane Home Auxiliary, the March of Dimes and the Salvation Army. New officers of the club include: Mesdames Walter Price, President; V. O. Harkness, Vice President; Byron Higgins, Secretary, and Earl Griggs, Treasurer.

FT. DIX, N. J.—During the recent sale period, Girl Scouts and Brownies here sold a record 11,412 boxes of cookies to bring in $5,135.40. Individual sales champion with 578 boxes is an 8-year-old Brownie, Suzanne Gilbert, daughter of M/Sgt. and Mrs. Charles A. Gilbert. Girl Scout Advisor for the post is Maj. Mabry H. Gibson.

FT. MEADE, MD.—Personnel here have contributed $25,708.51, more than twice the established goal for this post, to the National Health-Joint Crusade fund campaign. Drive officials, headed by Lt. Col. John C. Bolton, had designated 20% of a day's pay as the individual's "fair share" contribution.

FT. RICHARDSON, ALASKA—The Officers' Wives Club has donated $3,199 to the Alaska Crippled Children's Association. The money was raised from a frontier night sponsored by the OWC.

Special Clothing Rule

The Air Force tells how to obtain special measurement clothing for officers on active duty in AR 36-74.

Special measurement and orthopedic footwear are also covered by the regulation.

Family Housing Rolls At 6 Army-AF Bases

The House Armed Services Committee on 25 March approved construction of 571 new Capehart family housing units at six bases.

Two hundred units will be constructed at Bossier Base, La.; 213 at Sandia Base, N. M.; 60 at Lompoc USDB, Calif., and 98 at Forts Baker, Barry and Cronkhite, Calif.

Meanwhile, housing construction was making progress at other bases throughout the United States.

Here are some of the late developments at a number of Army and Air Force installations:

Ft. Monmouth, N. J.—Construction of the first group of 120 Capehart units has been completed and the houses are being assigned on a seniority basis to enlisted men and company grade officers. A second increment of 120 units has been under construction since early February and will be completed early next year. The newly completed housing units are of modern design, constructed as attached duplexes and equipped with screened patios.

Robins AFB, Ga.—Construction of 150 additional Capeharts has been approved. About 88 of the modern duplexes and single units are slated for airmen and their families and 62 for officers. The total number of Capehart units that will be built at Robins now stands at 423.

Ft. Benning, Ga.—Families have moved into 112 new Capehart units here, the first increment in a 1,000-unit project. The first group to be completed consists of 56 units for officers in 28 duplexes and 56 sets for enlisted personnel in four-apartment structures. In all, the $14 million project will consist of 248 units for officers and 752 "garden" apartments for enlisted men. Completion is scheduled in November.

AF Missile Development Center, N. M.—Approval has been granted for the construction of 400 Capehart units: 160 for officers and 240 for airmen. They will include two-, three- and four-bedroom units with 1 and ½ baths in all models except the two-bedroom units.

Observe Birthday

FT. SAM HOUSTON, TEX.—The Army Medical Service School Women's Club's seventh birthday will be celebrated with a luncheon, April 11, in the Army Medical Service School Officers' Open Mess, which will be converted into a garden of Spring flowers by Mrs. Richard Grundler, decorations chairman, and her committee.

The speaker for the luncheon will be Brig. Gen. Elbert DeCoursey, Commandant of the Army Medical Service School. Former Presidents of the Women's Club, now stationed at Ft. Sam Houston, have been invited as the birthday party's honor guests.

The main business for the day will be the election of officers for the year 1958-59. Presently serving are Mesdames Richard L. Howard, President; William V. Hill, 1st Vice-President and Social Chairman; Lynn Fargo, 2nd Vice-President and Publicity Chairman; Bertram S. Wright, Secretary; Raymond Duke, Corresponding Secretary; Frederick W. Whittemore, Treasurer; Converse Lewis, Program Chairman; Dwight H. Sloan, Hospitality Chairman; and James S. Pegg, Nominations Chairman. Mrs. Elbert DeCoursey is Honorary President.

Ft. Leonard Wood, Mo.—Construction is underway on 1,329 Capehart units; 1,073 for non-commissioned officers and 256 for officers. The project will cost an estimated $21.8 million. All of the four-, six- and eight-unit dwellings will be two-story combinations. Single units and duplexes will be one-story. All of the units will have two or three bedrooms.

Ft. Stewart, Ga.—Families have started moving into the first units of a $6 million Capehart project which is expected to be completed in June. In all, the project will include 388 units: 320 for enlisted men, 68 for officers. The enlisted units will consist of 40 row apartment-type buildings containing eight three-bedroom units each. The officer units will consist of 34 duplex-type buildings with two three-bedroom units each.

Underwater Jet Ejections Practical And Safe, Aero-Med Meeting Is Told

A cooperative British-American venture has proved that jet ejection from submerged aircraft is safe and practical. A radical departure from current escape techniques, the possibility of underwater jet ejection was conceived by LCDr. John S. Rawlins, RN, and was executed with the "tremendous help" of Capt. Edward Beckman, USN, at the Royal Air Force's Institute of Aviation Medicine, Farnborough, England. Both are specialists in aviation medicine.

Navy Safety Study
Their findings, presented for the first time in the United States at the Aero Medical Association convention 25 March in Washington, D. C., will be submitted to Navy safety authorities in the near future.

At the present time, Commander Rawlins said, only two out of three men who go into the sea in an aircraft get out alive. Using the new system, he said, they could achieve an almost perfect survival score.

On American planes with a frangible, or breakable canopy, Commander Rawlins' advice is to eject as soon as possible—right through the canopy. It does not matter what direction the pilot is ejected in. It is even desirable to be shot downward.

On some European-type planes with infrangible or reinforced cockpits, the pilot must first equalize cabin pressure by partially flooding the cockpit before removing his canopy. After the canopy is removed he can safely eject himself. Once free of the plane, the pilot must take two steps: he must unfasten his parachute harness and then inflate his life jacket.

There is little danger of losing consciousness during the ejection process, Commander Rawlins said, and all the operations can be simply and easily performed.

Breathe Out
He cautioned, however, that pilots ejecting themselves from a submerged airplane must not take a deep breath before firing. On the contrary, he said, they must make a positive effort to breathe out, and continue to breathe out at the time of ejection. This operation will keep the lungs from bursting in deep water.

Little modification is necessary, the commander said, to make any standard jet ejection seat efficient for underwater firings. The main change would be an adjustment of the firing pin mechanism to insure reliable underwater operation.

Although they previously thought it impossible, Royal Navy authorities have accepted the new escape technique, and will shortly make it a regular part of their operations.

U. S. Navy pilots, while trained to escape from submerged aircraft, have not been advised to use the jet ejection method. Only one Navy pilot, Lt.(jg.) Norman L. Sothan, USN, is reported to have used this technique in an actual aircraft accident.

Reporters See Third Jupiter C Readied For Flight To Space

CAPE CANAVERAL, FLA.

(The first full-scaled press tour of Cape Canaveral, Fla., was staged last week for a group of reporters, flown from Washington, D. C., to the Air Force Missile Test Center Headquarters at Patrick, AFB, for briefings by Maj. Gen. Donald N. Yates, Commander, and other top officials in the missile test program. Here are some notes and comments from THE JOURNAL reporter who covered this event).

The expert statement by General Yates that it will be possible to maintain ICBM's at virtually a moment's readiness is seen as possibly the most significant disclosure to the newsmen who visited here last week. This means, of course, that at times of emergency, ICBM units could quickly be put in such a state of readiness that "instantaneous retaliation" in event of an enemy attack would be possible.

General Yates was emphatic in making known this capability. He was questioned sharply about the long count-downs required for weapons using liquid oxygen. He explained that the operations at Canaveral are designed exclusively for test purposes, pointed out that operational units will function quite differently, and told of the possibility of holding missiles at a two-minute readiness level.

Reporters regularly covering the missile and satellite shoots at Canaveral generally favor the agreement not to pinpoint firing schedules in their stories in exchange for advance guidance from General Yates and his associates and arrangements for semi-ringside seats for the tests.

Officials here estimate the net worth of the Test Center and the 13 down range stations at about $400,000,000, with annual operating costs tabbed at $100,000,000.

Among other highlights of the Canaveral visit was the display at one of the Army pads of the Jupiter C missile that carried the second Explorer into orbit on 26 March. It had the marking "UT," a designation which showed it to be Missile No. 24, the letters being taken from the word "Huntsville." Capt. W. G. Nichols was the briefing officer at the Jupiter site.

LCrd. F. B. Forbes escorted newsmen on the visit to the Vanguard launching area, where only two days before, 17 March, the successful Vanguard launching had taken place. Typical of Navy tidiness, a sign on the blockhouse reads: "Pick Up Your Trash." Noteworthy is the fact that the Vanguard is called a "ship"; every other missile is a "bird."

The Douglas THOR briefing was given by Maj. H. A. Meyers of the Air Force Ballistic Missile Division. He indicated to reporters that in his judgment the THOR IRBM, on the basis of its tests here, is approaching "combat readiness."

It was learned at the ATLAS complex that consideration is being given to the use of the Douglas C-133 to transport the mammoth Convair Atlas ICBM. At present it must be trucked across the country from San Diego. Mr. B. G. McNabb, Operations Manager at the Test Center for Convair, escorted officers through a blockhouse with Maj. T. M. Gates of the Ballistic Missile Division. They noted that during a test, there are about 35 people in the blockhouse—one of them Mr. R. C. Shotwell, who operates the console which fires the weapon.

General Yates won applause from his audience of reporters at a briefing session when he was questioned about the meaning of press releases which say that a missile landed in "the predetermined target area." He replied quickly that statements put out at Canaveral don't say that; the target area is the Atlantic Ocean.

INDUSTRY IN DEFENSE

A LACROSSE GUIDED MISSILE for the U. S. Army gets a final check by Martin Company technicians at the firm's Orlando, Fla., Division. As reported in Martin's newly released 1957 Annual Report, Lacrosse is an all-weather missile powered by a solid fuel rocket motor and has an overall length of 19.2 feet. Components of the Lacrosse system include the missile, a launcher and the guidance system. Since these elements are mounted on standard Army mobile carriers, Lacrosse-equipped Army units are self-contained and self-sufficient, highly mobile, and can launch numerous types of warheads against a variety of enemy targets. A $16,000,000 Army contract for the Lacrosse has just been announced.

Boeing B-52 Retooling; Aerojet Saluted; TEMCO Award; IBM Speeds Polaris; AMF Missile Gear; Martin Tells Backlog

BOEING AIRPLANE COMPANY, Wichita, Kans., is near completion of a $53 million retooling operation for manufacture of the B-52. The project is described by company officials as "the most expensive retooling operation in the history of aviation."

INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS MACHINES, INC., reports that its Number 705 Computer will be used to speed construction on the Polaris missile-launching submarine at the Mare Island Naval Shipyard, Vallejo, Calif. The 705 is described by the company as the "first large-scale electronic computer to be installed in any U. S. naval shipyard."

SYLVANIA ELECTRIC PRODUCTS, INC., has developed an intricate triple-gun cathode ray tube which permits the presentation of three independently-controlled patterns on any portion of the screen. The tube will be used in military and airborne radar equipment.

AEROJET-GENERAL CORP., Azusa, Calif., has been congratulated by the Naval Research Laboratory on the development of the Aerobee, Jr., a research rocket for altitudes between 50 and 100 miles. In a letter from the Director, Capt. P. H. Horn, USN, the Laboratory reported "excellent flight tests" of the new vehicle.

WAYNE PUMP CO., Salisbury, Md., has received an $850,000 Army Corps of Engineers contract to modify Nike Ajax hydraulic mechanisms and elevator launching equipment to accommodate the Nike Hercules missile. The project is scheduled for completion by fall.

SERVO CORP. OF AMERICA, New Hyde Park, N. Y., is developing an advanced military infrared reconnaissance system, designed for long-range high-altitude missions. Under a $583,820 development contract from the Wright Air Development Center, Dayton, Ohio, the company will build five complete systems for evaluation.

NEW YORK AIR BRAKE CO., Watertown, N. Y., has disclosed that its Strato-power Hydraulic pumps were used on both the Army Jupiter C and the Navy Vanguard missiles. The company is now working on equipment for 20 ballistic and aerodynamic missile projects.

TEMCO AIRCRAFT CORP., Dallas, Tex., has been awarded $6.5 million in extra funds to continue development of the Navy's Corvus air-to-surface missile.

AMERICAN MACHINE & FOUNDRY CO., New York City, exhibited the first universal missile ground check-out system at the 1958 conference of the Institute of Radio Engineers 24 March in New York. The system can be adjusted to check-out radically differing missiles in a matter of minutes.

AMERICAN BOSCH ARMA CORP., Hempstead, N. Y., exhibited the inertial platform it is providing for the Air Force Titan ICBM at the 1958 Convention of the Institute of Radio Engineers in New York City. The platform provides a system of coordinates upon which all the vehicle's velocity and position measurements are based.

MARTIN COMPANY, Baltimore, Md., reports a current backlog of $795 million, approximately 60 per cent of which is missile and associated equipment. Martin's 1957 sales totalled $423.9 million, an increase of 18 per cent over the previous year.

REACTION MOTORS INC., Denville, N. J., has begun construction of a 100,000 pound thrust test stand. The stand will be used for accelerated testing of the Pioneer engine the company is developing for the North American X-15 research aircraft.

RAYTHEON MFG. CO.'S Missile Systems Division will add a 30,000 square foot building to its headquarters in Waltham Industrial Park, Mass. The new building will house office space, machine shops and utility rooms.

TUBE TURNS PLASTICS, INC., Louisville, Ky., has received a Naval Ordnance Laboratory contract to produce field-test quantities of a light, inexpensive cartridge case for the 105-millimeter howitzer. NOL estimates that the new cases may cost 25 per cent less than conventional cases when manufactured in production-line quantities.

THE AMERICAN SAFETY RAZOR PRODUCTS CORPORATION of New York, N. Y., has been awarded a $5,176,945 contract for the loading and assembly of 20 mm ammunition. This work will be done at the Kingsbury Ordnance Plant, LaPorte, Ind.

THE BURROUGHS CORPORATION of Detroit, Mich., has been awarded a $3,891,027 contract for electronic communications equipment.

BEECH AIRCRAFT CORPORATION has received contracts of approximately $2,385,000 for service parts and other articles to support the USAF MA-3 Multi-Purpose Vehicle, it is announced by Frank E. Hedrick, Beech Vice President-Coordinator. Developed for the Air Force by Beech Aircraft, the MA-3 ground power vehicle is designed to perform a wide range of pre-flight functions that formerly required use of several different units. It is now in quantity production for delivery to USAF jet fighter and bomber bases all over the world.

Chance Vought Wins High Navy Praise; New Crusader Beats 1,015 MPH Mark

Chance Vought Aircraft, Inc., has received the Navy Certificate of Merit for services in connection with the F8U-1 carrier-based fighter airplane.

The certificate, signed by Secretary Thomas S. Gates, was presented 25 March to Chance Vought Chairman of the Board C. J. McCarthy by RADM. Robert E. Dixon, Chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics.

The citation read in part, "Through the design, development, and production of the F8U-1 CRUSADER aircraft, Chance Vought has immeasurably benefited the U. S. Naval Air Force. With CRUSADER, carrier aviation has been ushered firmly past the sonic flight barrier into the era of truly supersonic striking power. In recognition of this significant contribution, which has materially enhanced the Navy's combat capability and the nation's security, this certificate is approved..."

Also attending the ceremony was W. P. Thayer, vice president, sales, from Chance Vought in Dallas. Bureau of Aeronautics officials included the Deputy and Assistant Chief, RADM. W. A.

Schoech; and the Assistant Chiefs of the Bureau.

THE FIRST FLIGHT of a production model of the Navy's Chance Vought F8U-2 is scheduled for September.

A faster and higher-flying version of the F8U-1 "Crusader," the new model already has been flown at speeds faster than those attained by its predecessor. The F8U-1 won the Thompson Trophy with a speed of 1,015 miles per hour.

With the exception of a slightly different nose cone configuration to accommodate advanced radar and the addition of two fixed low-aspect ventral fins mounted under the tail section and two afterburner air scoops, the F8U-2 closely resembles the first model.

The F8U-2 is equipped with the Pratt & Whitney J-57P16 engine.

In December 1957, the Navy awarded a $200 million contract for production of the F8U-2 and continued production of earlier version.

The F8U-2 carries the same armament as the F8U-1—cannon, 32 2.75-inch rockets and the heatseeking "Sidewinder" air-to-air missile.

Douglas Organizes Engineer Council

A top-level engineer council has been formed by the Douglas Aircraft Company to meet the challenge of current and future programs for manned and unmanned flight.

Engineering vice-president A. B. Raymond said the council will bring the 30 years of engineering, development and production experience of its ranking engineers to bear on the requirements of the military services for flight at high speeds and at high altitudes, including outer space.

Mr. Raymond, an outstanding aeronautical engineer, will serve as chairman. Other members will be the heads of the company's six major engineering units: E. F. Burton, Santa Monica; E. H. Heilmann, El Segundo; E. P. Wheaton, chief missiles engineer; C. C. Wood, Long Beach; C. E. Strang, Tulsa; and R. L. Hoskinson, director of the testing division.

The purpose of the council was listed as twofold:

(1) To map out the next most important goals both in the area of technical as well as economic progress toward which the Douglas technical effort should be directed, with particular reference to the rapid advance toward extreme high altitudes and speeds.

(2) To facilitate the mobilization of Douglas technical forces on major problems and projects, and to determine which outside and inside sources and agencies, or individuals, should be brought in to collaborate.

The group will hold regular monthly meetings, Mr. Raymond said, plus extra sessions as required.

AF Accounts ISO Dollars

The Air Force has issued a new version of AFR 177-11 which directs accounting officers to compute the costs of public information and public relations work.

APPOINTMENTS

PAGE COMMUNICATIONS ENGINEERS, Washington, D. C., has appointed Alfred E. Teachman as a project manager. Mr. Teachman has worked as a Development Officer at the Air Force Aircraft Radio Laboratory, Dayton, Ohio, organized the Army-Navy Aircraft Engine Ignition Shielding Group, and was Chairman of the Army-Navy Radio Noise Filter Committee.

ARMY-AF EXCHANGE SERVICE, New York City, has appointed John T. Dunlavy as its Public Relations Director. A major in the Marine Corps Reserve, he served as a flyer in WW II and a helicopter pilot in Korea.

REACTION MOTORS, INC., Denville, N. J., has retained W. G. Lundquist as technical consultant and advisor on the Pioneer rocket engine which will be used on the North American X-15 research aircraft. He will work directly with Joseph J. Antonides, Vice President and Pioneer Program Director.

GENERAL ELECTRIC'S Light Military Electronic Equipment Department, Utica, N. Y., has appointed Ray E. Horner as Manager of its newly-created Sidewinder Project. He joined GE after 13 years Air Force service in engineering and procurement assignments, leaving the Service with the rank of lieutenant colonel.

BELL AIRCRAFT CORP., Buffalo, N. Y., has elected Peter J. Wacks as an Assistant Vice-President. He will direct the industrial relations and security activities of the company's newly-formed Niagara Frontier Division.

Army-Marine Retired Generals Get Posts, Others Keep Busy After Careers Close

MAJ. GEN. HARRY REICHELDERFER, USA-Ret., has been named Assistant Director of Southwest Research Institute, San Antonio, Tex. Before joining the institute, General Reichelderfer was Fourth Army Deputy Commander and also served as Chief of the Army Security Agency, Washington, D. C.

Maj. Gen. Reichelderfer

BRIG. GEN. RICHARD W. LAYWARD, USMC-Ret., will assist Aerojet-General Corp., Azusa, Calif., in the design of the Pacific Missile Range, for which the company has a Government contract. General Layward resides at 5105 Holley Road, Virginia Beach, Va.

COL. WILLIAM C. FARMER, USA, Commander of the 61st Ordnance Group, Ft. Bliss, Tex., will become a Weapons Systems Manager for the Solar Aircraft Co., San Diego, Calif., upon his retirement 31 March.

CAPT. GRAYS MERRILL, USN-Ret., has been promoted from Engineering Director to General Manager of the Fairchild Guided Missiles Division, Wyandanch, N. Y. Before joining the company in 1957, Captain Merrill was Technical Director of the Navy's Polaris ballistic missile.

COL. E. B. CRABILL, USA-Ret., writing in the April issue of Harper's Magazine, says that Pentagon officers are building "empires" and recommends that personnel there be cut 50 per cent. The former Chief of Research and Development of infantry weapons and equipment in the Army Field Forces charges that the billions being spent on expensive military equipment are about as necessary for the nation's defense "as it is to furnish each voter with an air-conditioned Cadillac."

COL. MARK V. BRUNSON, USA-Ret., General Manager of the Pan American Bureau of Investigation, El Paso, Tex., has published a fiction work entitled "Hey Gertie, Your Slip's Showing." The volume contains about 100 true stories, tales and anecdotes dealing with 40 years service in the Army.

LT. COL. LOUIS H. WILSON, USAF-Ret., has been named to head the newly-activated Colorado Springs, Colo., office of RCA Defense Products. He is a former Chief of the Radio-Navigational Aid Branch at SAC Headquarters.

CAPT. HENRY F. DAVIDSON, USA-Ret., will attend a review by the 71st Infantry Regiment, New York City, on 29 March in honor of his son, Lt. Gen. Garrison Davidson, Superintendent of the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, New York. General Davidson has publicly credited his father for inspiring his military career.

Maj. Gen. Hale New Martin D. C. Manager

Maj. Gen. Dudley D. Hale, USAF-Ret., former Chief of the Air Force War Plans Division and Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations for the Allied Air Forces in Central Europe from 1953-1955, has been named manager of The Martin Company's Washington office, President George M. Bunker has announced.

Maj. Gen. Hale

General Hale attended the Signal School, Ft. Monmouth, N. J., the Air Corps Tactical School, Maxwell Field, Ala., and the Naval War College, Newport, R. I. He held positions as a top communications officer with the Sixth Air Force, Panama Canal Zone, and the Twelfth Air Force in North Africa and Italy during WW II. From July 1955 until his retirement, he commanded the Airways and Air Communications Service at Andrews AFB, Md., an organization responsible for installation and operation of navigational aids over the entire world-wide Air Force base system.

General Hale is married to the former Anne Davis of Louisville, Ky. The couple have one son, Dudley D. Hale, Jr.

A POLARIS MISSILE BREAKS the ocean's surface after being launched from an atomic-powered guided missile submarine. Three of the SSG (N): FBM's are being built as part of the Navy's 1959 shipbuilding program. The new submarine, shown in a Navy artist's drawing, is designed to remain on station for long periods of time. Two of this new class are being built by the General Dynamic Corporation's Electric Boat Division, and the third at the Mare Island Naval Shipyard. Each of the subs will carry 16 Lockheed-built Polaris missiles. The missiles will be launched like torpedoes and rise from the depths to strike deep into enemy territory. The submarines will be the largest submersibles ever built, with displacements of about 5,600 tons. They will be 380 feet long and have 33-foot beams. They are slated for completion in 1960.

Pentagon Overhaul Is Next In Sight

Pentagon reorganization will be the next order of business for the Kilday House Armed Services Subcommittee.

Chairman Carl Vinson (D-Ga.) of the full Committee told THE JOURNAL on 26 March that reorganization hearings will get underway the third week in April, following the traditional Congressional Easter Recess.

Chairman Vinson, Congressman Paul J. Kilday (D-Tex.) and Representative Leslie J. Arends (R-Ill.) have introduced legislation (THE JOURNAL, 1 March) to "streamline" top decision-making within the Defense Department.

The proposal would eliminate 14 members of the Pentagon secretariat, restrict the functions of the Defense Department Comptroller, limit OSD civilian employment to 600 and strengthen and tighten JCS control of the unified commands.

Companion legislation was introduced in the Senate this week by Senators Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) and Styles Bridges (R-NH).

Meanwhile, Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy is rushing to completion his own reorganization plan. He has said he is hopeful the Administration plan can be submitted to the Congress by 1 April.

Kilday Bill Boosts Re-Up $35 Million

The Kilday pay bill will add $35 million to reenlistment bonuses.

In some cases, the amount of the bonus will go up as much as $117.60 for a first reenlistment.

The reason for the increase is that the bonus is based on the man's pay rate at the time he reenlists.

Those reenlisting for the first time receive 30 days' pay times the number of years for which they reenlist.

For example, a man serving his first four-year enlistment who reaches pay grade E-5 now receives $163.80 per month basic pay. If he reenlists for six years he receives six times that amount, or $982.80 as a reenlistment bonus.

Under the Kilday pay scales, the same man would receive base pay of $180 per month. If he reenlists for six years, his reenlistment bonus jumps to $1,080, an increase of $97.20.

E-4 Profits Better

An E-4 would profit even better in terms of the reenlistment bonus. A man who reaches this pay grade during his first four-year enlistment receives $140.40 per month in base pay. If he reenlists for six years, his current bonus is $842.40. Under the Kilday scales his base pay would be $160 and his reenlistment bonus would go up to $960, an increase of $117.60.

Under present law, no man may receive more than a total of $2,000 in reenlistment bonuses during his Service career.

The increase base pay proposed by the Kilday bill could mean that an exceptionally capable enlisted man who is promoted rapidly could obtain the full maximum in two reenlistments.

For example, the E-4 who received $960 for his first reenlistment and who was subsequently promoted to E-7 during his second tour would receive base pay of $286 per month after seven years' service. Upon a second reenlistment for six years his bonus would be computed on the basis of 20 days' basic pay ($190.60) times six. However, this amount ($1,143.60), when added to his earlier bonus, totals more than $2,000, so that his bonus for a second reenlistment would be $1,040, the maximum for which he is eligible.

Here Is Formula

Here is the formula for figuring the reenlistment bonus under the new pay scales:

First reenlistment—For all grades except E-1, take one month's basic pay to which entitled at time of discharge and multiply by number of years specified in reenlistment contract, or six, if number

With Allowances, Officer Pay Ranges From $4620 To $31,100

ALL four-star officers with 30 years' service will receive an annual pay increases totalling $7,188 under the Kilday bill.

Lieutenant generals and vice admirals with 30 years' service will receive annual boosts of $5,388, and two-star officers with 30 years' service will receive annual increases of $3,588.

One-star officers with 26 years' service will receive annual boosts of $2,640.

Colonels and Navy captains with 22 years' service will receive increases of $2,052; for lieutenant colonels and commanders with 18 years' service, the annual increase is $1,344; for majors and lieutenant commanders with 16 years' service it is $960.

Captains and Navy lieutenants with 12 years' service will receive increases of $816; first lieutenants and lieutenants (jg) with five years' service will receive $444.

Second lieutenants and ensigns with over two years' service receive an annual boost of $168. However, there are officers in this category since most O-1's are promoted to O-2 upon the completion of 18 months' service.

Officers in pay grades O-1, O-2 and O-3 who have at least four years' cumulative service as enlisted men will receive higher increases than other junior officers.

The following chart compares examples of present active duty officer compensation with the Pentagon proposals (H.R. 9979) and the new rates proposed by the Kilday bill, together with allowances. It also shows the percentage increases in the various categories.

*For pay purposes. This may be more than the number of years of service as an officer.

of years is not specified. Those still in pay grade E-1 at time of reenlistment figure their bonus by taking 20 days' basic pay and multiplying by number of years specified in reenlistment contract, or six, if number of years is not specified.

Second reenlistment—For all grades except E-1 and E-2 (who are not eligible for a second reenlistment bonus), take 20 days' basic pay and multiply by number of years specified in reenlistment contract, or six, if none specified. In no case, however, may the total, when added to the first reenlistment bonus, exceed $2,000.

Third reenlistment—For grades E-4 and above (lower grades are not eligible) take 10 days' basic pay and multiply by number of years specified in reenlistment contract, or six, if none specified. The total, when added to the first and second reenlistment bonuses, may not exceed $2,000.

Fourth and subsequent reenlistment—For those in pay grades E-4 or higher (others are not eligible) take one-sixth of one month's basic pay and multiply by number of years specified in reenlistment contract, or six, if none specified. The total, when added to prior bonuses, may not exceed $2,000.

Col. Fry To Rock Island

Col. Edmund M. Fry, Engineer, Southern Area Command, in Germany, will become District Engineer at Rock Island, Ill., 1 September.

He succeeds Col. John L. Wilson, Jr., who has held the post since 1955 and who retires 31 August.

Pay Raise Would Boost Readjustment Payments For RIF'd Reserve Officers

Lump sum readjustment pay for Reserve officers involuntarily released from active duty will be increased substantially under the proposed new military pay scales.

In some instances, the increase could amount to more than $1,300.

This does not take into account proposed Pentagon legislation to further boost readjustment pay for those officers who are given term contracts.

Here are some examples of what the new pay scales, as presently proposed, would do to rehabilitation pay:

COLONELS AND NAVY CAPTAINS with 18 years' service when RIF'd, currently receive a lump-sum payment of $6458.40. Under the revised pay scales, the amount would be boosted to $7760.

A colonel with 17 years' service currently receives $5569. Under the new plan, he would receive $6800.

LIEUTENANT COLONELS AND COMMANDERS with 14 years' service now receive RIF checks totalling $3931.20. Under the new pay scales they would receive $4480.

MAJORS AND LIEUTENANT COMMANDERS with 12 years' service now receive lump sum readjustment pay checks of $2995.20. Under the new scales, they would receive $3600.

CAPTAINS AND NAVY LIEUTENANTS with 10 years' service, now receive $2184. Under the new scales they would receive $2500.

First lieutenants and lieutenants (jg) with three years' service now receive $503.10. Under the new scales they would receive $640.

"EXCELLENT" SAYS CORDINER

President Ralph J. Cordiner of the General Electric Company advised Representative Paul J. Kilday (D-Tex.) that he thinks the revamped military pay bill is "excellent," despite the fact that it does not meet all of the recommendations made by the Cordiner Committee.

Fifteen minutes before the House convened to begin consideration of the pay plan, Mr. Cordiner called to assure Congressman Kilday of his support for the revised pay plan. He said he was hopeful the House would pass the measure, as it did a scant five hours later.

The GE Executive's support for the House-passed measure will mean smoother sailing for the plan in the Senate Armed Services Committee and on the Senate floor.
